Descendants of Robert Stockton

of Pennsylvania

Robert D. Stockton

Pennsylvania and a family named Stockton

The record begins when emigrant Robert Stockton paid taxes for land in 1732 in Chester County, southeastern Pennsylvania. It ends with the birth of his great-great-great-great-grandson, Frank Stockton, in 1895, in Warren County, northwestern Pennsylvania.

For over a hundred and fifty years the family "removed" across Pennsylvania in the company of Scotch-Irish emigrants or their descendants. They were members and officers in their local Presbyterian Church (a Scottish institution). They intermarried with other members of their Scotch-Irish community and faith: such as the Ewing, Harvey, Herrick, Keith, Pattison, Snodgrass and Stewart families.

DNA evidence suggests that there was a Finnish Viking in the family in the distant past.

Executive Summary

This is a Genealogy Report of the Robert Stockton DNA Family of Pennsylvania. Of course, this includes many more related families than just the Stocktons. Most prominent are Ewing, Harvey, Herrick, Keith, Pattison, Snodgrass and Stewart family names.

Historians do not have source information about Emigrant Robert Stockton's origins, but it is likely that he was born about 1688; that his parents were Ulster Scot Presbyterians of northern Ireland and that he came to the North American Commonwealth of Pennsylvania sometime in the early 1700's.

Descendants of Robert Stockton pushed west across Pennsylvania, through Lancaster, York and Franklin Counties to Washington County, then north to Crawford, Jefferson, Venango, Clarion, Forest and Warren Counties. They cleared the primitive forest, plowed their land, built their homes, schools and churches and raised their families. They served their country.

They were of a deeply rooted, fundamental religious faith, with an independent, cocky self confidence to care for and to protect one's family against all odds.

In regard to their family traits, these Stocktons were a product of their Scotch-Irish heritage. Their patriotism, their independent spirit, their distrust of Government, their fundamental belief that if it wasn't written in the Bible, it wasn't important in their lives, and their self-righteous attitude toward others were all traits that were developed in their ancestors long before immigration into the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Long before Pennsylvania, long before Ireland, long before Scotland, there was Finland and maybe France and England.

Preface

This work is an attempt to do two things at the same time, as if to balance one ball upon another. The result is somewhat unstable, but the dual effort is necessary in order to tell a whole story. One focus of this work is to document the history of the author's family. The other focus is to ask and possibly answer the author's life-long quest: Who am I?

Legacy

"Who am I?"

Certainly, this author has asked this of himself so many times, so many ways, and for so many years.

There was no one else to ask. He was from a truncated family. His parents and grandparents moved to California from "Back East" after World War I and rarely looked back. There was complete disconnect with other members of the family that could have provided an encyclopedia of family stories and legends.

Early on, as the author began a study of his family history, he started to notice that there were similarities of character traits between many of his ancestors. On average, his ancestors were successful, if somewhat plodding farmers, solid, middle class leaders of their rural communities. There were no great statesmen or gifted artists. With few exceptions, there were no brilliant scholars or political or military leaders. They were honest, god-fearing citizens of their community.

They were generally intelligent. They had a spirit of independence, possessing a tendency to go-it-alone without support of family or friends. They were self assured, possessing self-confidence in their own ability to prosper in a hard world. Although there was enormous love of family, community and country, there was also a trait of rebellion, of rejection of parental or civil authority whenever there was any effort to thwart their own ego or activities. Though unstated, they must have had an unusual ability to focus their life, to achieve whatever goals they set for themselves. Also unstated, they may have been harder on themselves than others, as if driven by an inner life force. In youth, they were inherently restless, needing to move to new lands. As they grew older, this restlessness was replaced with maturity.

It was then that the author attempted to expand the study so as to learn more about who his Stockton ancestors were, to look more closely at what they were, in order to find more about his own quest: "Who am I?"

The "I" Test

If you need a little nudging to convince yourself of your Scotch-Irish ancestry, consider whether your grandfather was Baptist, Methodist or Presbyterian? Then, consider the individual self-confidence that is inerrant in the breed. Take this test:

> In conversation with another loved one, have you ever said to yourself (but not out loud, of course)...?
> > "If I want something done right, I have to do it myself."
> > "I can do anything you can do and I can do it better than you."
> > "It's not my fault."
> > "You should have told me."

All in all, you probably don't even know of your Scotch-Irish ancestry. But then there is your intelligence, your self-possession, your I-can-do-it spirit, and perhaps there is your religious faith that might give you some clue.

It worked for me.

History and Purpose of the Project

The beginning of this project can be remembered as a family discussion in May 2005 around the dining room table in the home of our daughter and her husband in Kansas City, Missouri.

The discussion was about family history and what we know to pass on to our two granddaughters. There was discussion of current projects about the McBees, the Ambroses, the Pikes, and the Stilsons. The problem was that I knew my Stockton parents and grandparents, but not much more.

From earliest times, I was told that I was named after two paternal great-grandfathers: Robert Stockton and David Stilson. I knew that Grandfather Stockton had been a carpenter-contractor in Jamestown, New York prior to World War I, and that Dad had graduated from the University of Michigan Dental School in 1918. He and his parents moved to Los Angeles in 1921: Dad and Grandfather by auto; Grandmother and household furniture by train. But I had not one clue who was my Great-Grandfather or where the Stocktons came from.

So, with encouragement from my wife and daughter, I began a study of our Stockton ancestors.

Eventually, my intentions changed as the days passed, one by one. Projects were started; some evolved, some were dropped. A slide-show, Report to Family, was premature. Two attempts were made to produce a CD. More telling was a need to focus, to do one thing well that could be complete, that could be polished later. God willing, as they say.

As of now, this project has evolved into something more than a story to tell the grandchildren. Descendants of Robert Stockton of Pennsylvania is written with statements, with citations, so that future researchers may verify the data and support or revise the assumptions made. The intent has been to summarize what is currently known and to make logical assumptions thereof. Hopefully, this may become a research tool for others to build on. Soon, other sources will be made available for family study, such as U.S. Census reports of 1940 and later, to the benefit of further research.

It is like casting a bottle message into the sea, not knowing where time and currents will take it and who, if anyone, will receive it.

So, to the unborn, the future descendants of Emigrant Robert Stockton, "Hello! This is your family. If you want to get involved, here is what I know today."

Thank you for your support and assistance

Among the papers of Dr. Frank W. Stockton, Santa Cruz, CA, found after his death in 1983, was a five-page document listing his Stockton family genealogy. It was typewritten, without a title, without a signature, and undated. Twenty-three years later, Janine Carol Stockton Lowry, sent the author a copy.

A year after that, Anne Stewart, Librarian of the Crawford County Historical Society in Meadville, PA, produced an identical copy with the author's name and date: Mrs. Burton Freyermuth [Helen Pattison Freyermuth Maloney (1912-2003)], dated Nov. 16, 1981. (Helen Pattison and Frank Stockton were first cousins.)

In 2006, family members in Pennsylvania and New York remembered that Mrs. Pattison had been making inquiries about their ancestors some twenty years before.

In 2007, Pat Stockton, a Stockton Genealogist of Tucson, AZ, mailed another copy of Helen's 1981 paper to the author. Earlier, Pat had received her copy from Pam Jaglinski, another Stockton Genealogist of Gig Harbor, WA. And so the circle goes round and round.

In appreciation, that Helen Freyermuth lighted the path for others to follow, this work is dedicated to illuminate the way for someone else.

A special tribute is due to Crawford County Historical Society, Anne W. Stewart, Librarian, and her staff. Their diligent keeping of the records was so complete that the Crawford County story just wrote itself.

Special thanks is due to Mary Edwards and Lura Parker McGlynn for the volunteer days each contributed to this project. Thanks, also, to Kelli Proehl, Librarian, Emporia Public Library, for her diligence in obtaining material from the Kansas Inter-Library Loan Program and for her time and talent as proof-reader.

Also, special recognition is due to Patricia M. Stockton, Tucson, AZ, for her work: "John David Stockton's - Robert Line", and to Richard P. Day, Prescott, AZ, for his work: "Robert Stockton Lineage", and for the contribution of their work to the content of this study.

In the Appendix is a list of those that contributed their time and talent to this study or who lent an ear in support of the cause. The author is most grateful to these wonderful people.

Introduction

Source Data

Dr. Thomas Coates Stockton, in his The Stockton Family of New Jersey and Other Stocktons,[1] describes the history of three emigrant Stockton families: the Stockton family of Richard Stockton of New Jersey, the Stockton family of Robert Stockton of Pennsylvania and the Stockton family of Davis Stockton of Virginia. This study focuses on Dr. Stockton's "The Other Stocktons" of Pennsylvania, descendants of Robert Stockton, an emigrant probably from northern Ireland.

The traditional approach to genealogy studies is through the accumulation of hard data, such as government documents, supported by softer data, i.e., publications of the day, and proven family histories.

There is a great deal of published history about the pioneer Stockton families of Lancaster, York, Franklin, Washington and Crawford Counties, PA. For the family history from early records to about 1800, the author has relied on the work of these earlier researchers, those closer to the scene, such as the work of Crumrine (1892)[2], Beers (1893)[3, 4], Bates (1899)[5], and local history and genealogy publications (see Bibliography). Much of this Pennsylvania history is readily available on the internet.

Records of the period from about 1800 to 1850 contain some misinformation or conflicting data about the Robert Stocktons of Washington County and Crawford County, PA. To address this issue, additional research has been made of three generations of Stocktons of this period, with emphasis on events in Crawford County.

For the family record of the period from about 1850 to the present, there is information from US Census reports, other government documents, papers from local libraries and genealogical societies, and family memories and personal papers, which is what they are.

The author is beholden to others who have plowed in these fields before him. More recent Stockton researchers have been Thiessen (1990)[6], Setterquist (1993)[7]. Bell (1995)[8], Day (2000)[9], McKemie (2002)[10], Patricia M. Stockton[11] and Clifford Neilson.

This study is also influenced by James G. Leyburn (1962).[12] James Leyburn was a sociology professor of Washington and Lee University. He presents a social history of the Scotch-Irish people in Scotland, Ireland and the American colonies. His detail of the Scotch-Irish history is written with logical conclusions and abundant citations. Leyburn (1962) is a "must read" for the reader seeking understanding of his/her Scotch-Irish ancestry.

Scope of the Study

Today's Stockton grandchildren and great-grandchildren are of Generations 11 and 12, but the genealogy record had to stop somewhere. The last U.S. Census currently available to genealogy researchers is the 1930 Census. This roughly relates to those of Generation 9. So the "Genealogy Report" includes those descendants through Generation 9, the children of Generation 8.

Perhaps a dozen individuals included in this report are living today. It was inevitable, perhaps, that at least two have objected to this study as unwelcome public exposure. With apology, the author would like to assure them, and all friends and family, that personal information in this publication about living people has been boiled down to essential information, even though very personal information is readily available in today's society and technology.

Throughout this work, each chapter and appendix section contains endnotes to document the source of most statements. These listings of Works Cited are not for popular reading, but may be important to other researchers.

Deep Ancestry (yDNA)

Stockton is not a Scottish clan name. Attempts to locate past or present Stockton's in Ireland and Scotland have been unsuccessful. Possibly, there was a name change somewhere. Another approach is needed.

Deep ancestry study of the yDNA of males now provides genealogists with such a new tool. The author has used this new tool to develop a deep ancestry study of his family.

Results of yDNA tests confirm that the Richard Stockton, NJ, and the Robert Stockton, PA, families are not related. The Stocktons of New Jersey are of DNA Haplotype G, whereas the Stocktons of Pennsylvania are of DNA Haplotype I, two different branches of the human race.

A deep ancestry study has lead the author to believe that an early male ancestor once lived in Scandinavia, probably Finland, before the Viking Age, some 1,200 to 1,500 years ago, and that a descendent eventually migrated to Pennsylvania 300 years ago.

Deep ancestry is a new science. Currently, there is insufficient data to match the connection from Finland to Pennsylvania. Perhaps more will be known in ten years. Sometime in the future someone else can continue this unfinished business.

Meanwhile, one cannot resist the temptation to speculate: "Where should one look next?"

(A Traditional Ancestry)

Those of Scottish origin know that forenames are typically passed from generation to generation. The eldest born son is normally given the name of the grandfather, second son the name of the maternal grandfather, third son the name of the father, 4th fathers oldest brother, 5th the mothers oldest brother and so on.

Overview

The leading authority about emigrant Robert[1] Stockton of Pennsylvania appears to be The Stockton Family of New Jersey and Other Stocktons, by Dr. Thomas Coates Stockton, M.D.[1]

Supporting statements have been found in FamilyTreeeDNA.com.[2]

The Stockton DNA Surname Project has verified through DNA testing that the descendant family of Robert Stockton of Pennsylvania is one of three Stockton families in the United States.[3]

The earliest record of Robert Stockton appears on a tax list in 1732.[4] Robert would have been in his mid-40's, accompanied by his wife and at least three adult children.

Biography

There are records of Robert Stockton from 1732 from Nottingham Township, Chester County, and from 1747 in Lancaster County, PA.[5]

Nottingham Township is at the extreme southwestern part of Chester County, adjoining the Maryland line, and was probably considered as being in Maryland before the establishment of Mason and Dixon's line.[6]

In present times, there is an East and West Nottingham Township in Chester County. West Nottingham Township is due west of the watershed for White Clay Creek, where the Thomas Waddell family is said to have settled in the 1730's. The two families later intermarried.[7]

Robert Stockton's wife's name was Isabel. They were married about 1705. Her maiden name is unknown. It had been thought by some that Isabel's maiden name was Painter. Others stated that her maiden name was Frazier. Neither the name Painter or Frazier has yet been established as Isabel's surname.[8, 9]

The Stockton family were the first to bring bulbs to this new country. It is uncertain whether they were bulbs for flowers or bulbs for plants like onions.[10]

Around 1740 Robert Stockton and his wife removed to Lancaster County, PA, and took up land in Sadsbury Township. He was named executor in the will of John Flemon of Sadsbury Township, written on May 05, 1740 and proved May 24, 1740. His land there was surveyed on April 12, 1743. In 1745 his name appears on a deed in Sadsbury Township as a witness for Thomas Faulkner.[11]

His son-in-law, Samuel Simonds [sic]*, wrote his Last Will and Testament on April 23, 1747. In it he left his seven minor children to the care of his father-in-law, Robert Stockton. The Will named Samuel's wife, Jane Simmons and the seven minor children: Isabel, Mary, Elizabeth, Samuel, Robert, Ann, and Johanna. He named his wife, Jane Simmons and his father-in-law, Robert Stockton, as executors. His Will was proved May 09, 1747.[12]

Robert Stockton of Sadsbury Township, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, wrote his will on February 08, 1747 and died shortly after Samuel Simmons. Robert's will was proven in court on March 17, 1748. In it he mentioned his wife, Isabel; his sons, Robert, John, George, Thomas, and David; his son-in-laws, John Young and William Keeth [sic]; and the seven orphaned children left in his care through the will of Samuel Simmons. He chose his sons, Thomas Stockton and David Stockton to be guardians of the seven grandchildren. He named his sons, Thomas Stockton and David Stockton as executors.[13]

Isabel Stockton also died in the year 1747, in Lancaster County, PA.[14, 15]

Her will was recorded and proved March 01, 1747 or 1748. The executors named were their sons, Thomas and David, and the witnesses were William Carr, Thomas Holliday, Archibald Edmondson, and Andrew Moore.[16, 17]

* sic >adverb (after a copied or quoted word that appears odd or wrong) written exactly as it stands in the original.

Their sons, David Stockton and Thomas Stockton, were later appointed by the court to be the legal guardians of the seven orphan children. It is uncertain if Jane Simmons died before her parents. In those days children were required to have a male guardian even if their mother was living.[18]

Robert and Isabel were both buried in Pequea Church in the eastern part of Lancaster County.[19, 20, 21]

Their son, George Stockton, wrote his will on February 29, 1747 or 1748 in Sadsbury Township. It was proved March 09, 1747 or 1748. In his will he requested that his body be buried beside his father and mother in the Pequea Church Yard.[22]

Children

Children of Robert and Isabel Stockton:[23, 24, 25]

Thomas married Margaret Fleming. He died May 31, 1795 in Mercerburg, Franklin County, PA; buried in Church Hill Cemetery, Upper Conocheaque, Franklin County, PA.

David married Elizabeth Smith, daughter of James Smith, a Quaker; no children.

Robert married Sarah (Keith) Fleming; settled in Shepherdstown on the Potomac in 1734. Robert died 1778, Berkeley, VA. They had three children; George, Isabella and Robert.

John married Elizabeth Aldredge, November 05, 1745, Cecil, MD. They lived in Cecil County, MD, across the state line from where his father lived. Their children were Joseph, Benjamin, Isabella, John and Elizabeth.

George married Jane (Unknown), no children.

Daughter married John Young.

Margaret married William Keith, a yeoman. She was born 1721 in Ulster, Ireland and died May 01, 1772 in Bucks County, PA. Children were Martha, Isaiah, Noble, Elizabeth, Robert, John, Isaac, Margaret, Sarah and Samuel.[26]

Jane married Samuel Simonds. Both died and left seven children: Isabel, Mary, Elizabeth, Samuel, Robert, Ann and Johanna.

The Pattern

Though little is known of Robert Stockton before his immigration to Pennsylvania, certain additional factors can be projected to flesh out a more complete picture of the man and his family. (Yes, these are assumptions and interpretations, not facts.)

From historical records it appears that Robert Stockton could have been in the mainstream of the second great wave from Ulster, 1725-1729. Robert Stockton's earliest record in Chester County in 1732 was 3 to 7 years after the second great wave.

If Robert Stockton was born about 1688 and if he immigrated during the second great wave of immigration, 1725 to 1729, he would have been in his late thirty's when he reached Pennsylvania. His wife Isabel could have been in her mid-thirty's. Sons Thomas and David would have been in their teens. Son Robert would not be far behind.

It is reasonable to assume that Robert and Isabel and their two or three oldest children immigrated together. The mass migration of entire villages and their pastor was well known.

The Stockton's could have sailed on a ship arriving at the Port of Chester on the Delaware River in Delaware County. The first record of the family in Chester County was in a locality immediately west of the Port of Chester.

Thereafter, sufficient time elapsed to account for a period of indenture between the second great wave and Robert Stockton's first recorded presence in Chester County. It is reasonable to assume that they were indentured to pay for their passage. They were dirt farmers, not tradesmen or noblemen.

Apparently, Robert preferred to live in established communities of friends and neighbors. Since Robert's name appears on early Chester County tax lists, it seems apparent, at least to this author, that Robert settled on lawfully purchased land, not by "squatting" on the land. This may be a reflection of honesty and preference for established settlements.

It would also be consistent that a family man in mid-life would prefer the security of established communities rather than be inclined to advance into the Wilderness in search of adventure.

Robert, shortly before his death, moved again, becoming part of the westward migration into Lancaster County.

Considering all of this, Robert may have been in the forefront of the Scotch-Irish migration across Pennsylvania, but certainly he was not the Frontiersman far in front. Although afflicted with the Scotch-Irish itch to move now and then, he apparently preferred the support of a community of neighbors, his Church and schooling for his sons.

Overview

Stockton (1911) and Beers (1895) are the primary authorities about Thomas[2] Stockton (c. 1709-1795).[1, 2]

Thiessen (1990) contains original information about taxes paid by Thomas and his sons to Menallen and Straban Townships, York (now Adams) County, PA.[3]

The first records of Thomas Stockton were as witness to a will in 1743 in Chester County and as co-executor of his parents wills in 1747.[4]

Thomas served in the Revolutionary War in a patriotic capacity.[5]

Later, Thomas moved in with his daughter Elizabeth to a place near Chambersburg, Franklin County, and still later he moved with her to near Mercersburg, Franklin County.[6]

Biography

Thomas Stockton, son of Robert and Isabel (Unknown) Stockton, born about 1709.[7, 8]

Thomas m. Margaret Fleming, 1730. Margaret, born about 1715; was said to have been a native of Ireland.[9, 10]

Thomas Stockton's name appears with that of Francis Stockton as witnesses on the Chester County will of John White of West Nottingham Township. The will was written and dated August 30, 1743.[11]

It is probable that Thomas removed from Chester County sometime after 1751, settling in Menallen Township, York County (now Adams County since 1800), PA; his son, Robert, preceded him to that place.[12]

Thomas was named as executor of the will of Robert Moore of Menallen Township in 1758.[13]

In the year 1762, Thomas and his son, Robert were both taxed in

Menallen Township.[14]

In 1765, Robert purchased 280 acres of land in Menallen Township.[15]

Thomas Stockton was Commissioner for York County from 1765 to 1768.[16]

Tax records for Menallen Township list a Thomas Stockton in 1772.[17]

In 1777, he sold 200 acres to his son David.[18]

Thomas Stockton was commissioned Captain of the Eighth Company, Fourth Battalion, York County, Pa., Associators, April 05, 1778; John Andrew, Colonel.[19, 20]

Thomas Stockton was an official of the County in other capacities during the American revolution.[21] In 1777 he was appointed a commissioner by the Committee of Safety to collect arms, accouterments and clothing for the army. In 1778 he was appointed agent for forfeited estates of those persons not willing to sign the Oath of Allegiance.[22]

Thomas was an elder in the Presbyterian Church for many years.[23]

Sometime before 1794, Thomas Stockton moved with his daughter, Elizabeth and her husband, William Waddell, to a place near Mercersburg, Pennsylvania. There, on May 31, 1795, at the age of 86 years, he died of whooping cough. (William Waddell was a brother of Rev. James Waddell, of Virginia, whose daughter, Jeanette, was married to Rev. Archibald Alexander, D.D.). [24, 25, 26]

Thomas Stockton wrote his will at Peters Township, Franklin County, Pennsylvania on October 19, 1794. In it he named his sons, Thomas, John, David, and Robert; his daughters, Elizabeth Waddell, Isabella Neilson, Mary Bard, and Margaret Johnston; his son-in-law, William Waddell; and his grandson, Thomas Stockton. Besides what he bequeathed to his children of a monetary nature, his will also stated:

WILL OF THOMAS STOCKTON

In the name of God Amen October the Nineteenth one thousand seven hundred and Ninety-four. I, Thomas Stockton, in Township of Peters, County of Franklin, and Province of Pennsylvania, being sick and weak in body but yet in Perfect mind and memory blessed be God for it. I do Allow my bed & Clothes to my Daughter Elizabeth Waddell Except my curtains; I do give them to My Daughter, Isabella Neilson. And further, I do bequeath to my Grandson, Thomas Stockton, my Grat Coat, & my Strait Coat & my breeches to my son, John Stockton.[28]

His wife, Margaret, was not mentioned in his will.

Thomas Stockton is buried in the center of the Church Hill Cemetery at Upper Conococheague, Pennsylvania, near Chambersburg. This church no longer exists. The burial place of Margaret, his wife, is not known.[29, 30]

Some children of Thomas and Margaret (Fleming) Stockton scattered to other states. John, Isabella and David and their families removed to Menallen Township, Ross County, Ohio. Thomas moved to Kentucky and North Carolina. Robert, Mary, Elizabeth and Margaret remained in Pennsylvania.[31, 32]

Children

Robert born October 19, 1737; married December 22, 1761 at Menallen Township, York County, PA, Mary Makemie (or McKemie) born May 25, 1738. She died May 26, 1818. Robert died June 3, 1821. He was a farmer and served with distinction in the Revolutionary War. Their children were Thomas, Margaret, Frances, Mary, Jane, Robert, John, Elizabeth and Joseph.

Elizabeth born 1739, West Nottingham Township, Chester County, PA; married August 27, 1770, William Waddell, born 1744. He died 1830. Elizabeth died 1808; buried Fairview Cemetery, Mercersburg, Franklin County, PA.

Mary born 1743 West Nottingham Township, Chester County, PA; married (Unknown) Bard.

Margaret born 1745 West Nottingham Township, Chester County, PA; married (Unknown) Johnson.

The Pattern

Genealogy records for Thomas Stockton tell little of his character. It is evident that he was ambitious and that he was deeply religious in service to his Presbyterian Church. He advanced the family westward to new lands. He was an honest citizen and a leader in his community. He served his country well. It can be said, he was not a Frontiersman. He was a conventional farmer with all the traits of the Scotch-Irish.

An added note, important for this discussion, is that Margaret Flemming, Robert's wife, most probable was a Scotch-Irish immigrant.

Overview

Stockton (1911) and Beers (1895) are the primary authorities about Robert[3] Stockton (1737-1821).[2, 3, 4]

Thiessen (1990) contains original information about taxes paid by Robert in 1762 to Menallen Township, York now Adams County, PA.[5]

Thomas[2] Stockton's will, executed in 1821, identified his son Robert[3], "I do bequeath ten Pounds out of it to my son Robert Stockton...."[6] (Fig. 5).

Robert bought land and paid taxes in Lancaster County (now Franklin County) in 1767.[7]

Robert is buried in Washington Cemetery, Washington, PA.[8]

Biography

Robert Stockton, son of Thomas and Margaret Fleming Stockton, was born October 19, 1737 in Lancaster County (later Cumberland County, now Franklin County since 1784), Pennsylvania. He died June 03, 1821 in Washington County, PA. He is buried in Washington Cemetery, Washington County, PA.[9, 10]

Robert married December 22, 1761 in Menallen Township, York County (now Adams County since 1800), PA, Mary Makemie, daughter of John and Margaret (Breckenridge) Makemie. Mary was born May 25, 1738 in Frederick County, Maryland. She died May 26, 1818 in Canton Township, Washington County, PA.

Robert Stockton settled in Menallen Township, York County, prior to 1751. His name appears on the tax list for that township in 1762. He removed from York County and settled near Chambersburg, PA, where, on August 09, 1767 he purchased a farm. Chambersburg was originally in Lancaster County, but due to political boundary changes, it became to be in Cumberland County and, finally, in Franklin County.

In the year 1775 the name Robert Stockton, appears as a witness for a deed of John McKeamy and Joseph McKeamy of Letterkenny Township, Franklin County.[11, 12]

Robert Stockton, his father Thomas Stockton and his brother-in-law William Waddell, were pew holders in the Rocky Spring Old Log Presbyterian Church, located in Letterkenny Township, about four miles north of Chambersburg. The Rocky Spring Church was under the ministry of Rev. John Craighead.[13, 14, 15]

Fig. 8

Robert Stockton served in the Revolutionary War along with his pastor. He was a private in Captain James McConnell's Company, Fifth Battalion, Cumberland Militia, commanded by Colonel Joseph Armstrong, 1776, and fought in the battles of Princeton (Trenton?) and Monmouth. (See Fig. 6.)[17, 18, 19]

Robert Stockton moved to Washington County, PA, when western Pennsylvania began opening up to settlers. In July 1784 he purchased 340 acres of land from Peter Jolly. The land, called "Beaver Dam" in the survey, was situated on Shirtee Creek in Franklin Township, and was located about three and a half miles west of the Town of Washington. He was one of four elders in the Presbyterian Church there when it was organized and was the first delegate to the Presbytery at "Old Redstone".[20, 21]

Robert Stockton Sr. and family resided in Canton Township, Washington County, in 1790, 1800 and 1810.[22]

John McKenney (Makemie) of Washington County, brother-in-law of Robert Stockton, wrote his will June 19, 1800. In it he named Robert Stockton as his executor.[23]

Robert Stockton wrote his Last Will and Testament at Canton Township, Washington County, PA, April 19, 1821, and died shortly after. In his will he mentioned his sons, Robert, John, Joseph, and Thomas Stockton; his daughters, Margot Cotton, Jane Brice, and Elizabeth Cunningham; and his son-in-law, Charles Stewart. He appointed his son, Thomas, to be his executor. The will was proved June 18, 1821.[24]

It is apparent that the Presbyterian church played an important role in the life of this family. Of Robert Stockton's children, one son became a minister, two daughters married ministers, at least two other sons became elders of the church, while another daughter was the wife of an elder.[25]

Robert Stockton died June 03, 1821. Mary (Makemie) Stockton died May 26, 1818. Both were buried in Old Washington Cemetery, Washington, PA, were disinterred and were reburied in new Washington Cemetery in 1856 (the old cemetery is now a schoolyard). Washington

Rev. Joseph, born February 25, 1779, Chambersburg, Cumberland County, PA; married May 08, 1800; died October 29, 1832, Baltimore, MD, Esther Clark, daughter of David Clark. Esther born March 29, 1782, Washington, PA; died April. 13, 1868. Joseph died of cholera October 29, 1832, Baltimore, MD; buried in Allegheny Cemetery, Pittsburgh. Rev. Joseph Stockton was educated at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, where he graduated M.A., and afterward studied theology under John M'Millan, D.D., a Presbyterian clergyman. He became a licentiate in 1799; was ordained June 24, 1801, and appointed first pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Meadville, and Little Sugar Creek, now Cochranton, where he resided for nine years. During this time he had charge of the Academy, which still continues a thriving institution. In 1809, he was appointed principal of the Pittsburgh Academy, which afterward became the Western University, and held the position for eleven years. During this time he published the once famous school books, the Western Spelling Book and Western Calculator. His ministerial duties were devoted, from his first establishment at Pittsburgh, to the soldiers at the garrison, to the building of a church at Allegheny, and to supplying the infant congregation at Pine Creek, until 1820, when for the next nine years he devoted himself to the Allegheny and Pine Creek congregations.[30, 31, 32]

The Pattern

Robert showed more aggressive tendencies than his parent in pushing west. Born in Lancaster County, in 1737, he moved at an early age (before 1751) to Menallen Township, York County. He moved again to Letterkenny Township, Lancaster County, before his father moved into Lancaster County. He bought a farm in 1767 near Chambersburg. After the Revolutionary War, he moved yet again; this time leaving the parental home to cross the Appalachian Mountains into Canton Township, Washington County, where he purchased land in 1784.

He was just as earnest as his parents in support of his Presbyterian Church, being prominent in Church affairs, both in Lancaster and Washington Counties.

As his father and grandfather before him, Robert apparently preferred to live in the company of a community of neighbors, although many siblings and cousins were real "Frontiersmen" of the day in Ohio and Kentucky.

Again, Robert looked to the Scotch-Irish community for his wife. She is said to have been related to Rev. Francis Makemie, pioneer Presbyterian Minister in America.[33, 34]

Overview

Beers (1895) is the primary authority about Col. Robert[4] Stockton (1771-1844) in Washington County, PA.[1, 2]

Apparently, Robert moved to Crawford County in late 1800 or early 1801. U.S. Census places him in Canton Township, Washington County, in 1800. Moore (1985) places him in Crawford County in 1801.[3, 4]

Robert purchased a 105-acre farm in Sadsbury (now Vernon) Township in 1802.[5]

Thereafter, Robert was a person of record in county deed and tax records and U.S. Census reports until his death in 1845.

Robert and his wife, Mary, are buried in Union Cemetery, Harmonsburg, PA (Fig. 11).

Biography

Col. Robert Stockton was one of four sons of Robert and Mary Makemie (or McKennie) Stockton, farmers of Canton Township, Washington County, PA.[6]

US Census Record of 1800 lists a Robert Stockton Jr, family living in Canton Township, Washington County. In this Census Report, Robert Stockton Jr. was listed as head of family (male, age 26 thru 44). Also shown were a female, age 26 thru 44 [his wife Mary?], a male under 10 years old [their son?] and a female under 10 [a daughter?].[7]

Stockton (1911) stated that these two children were Edward and Henrietta Stockton:

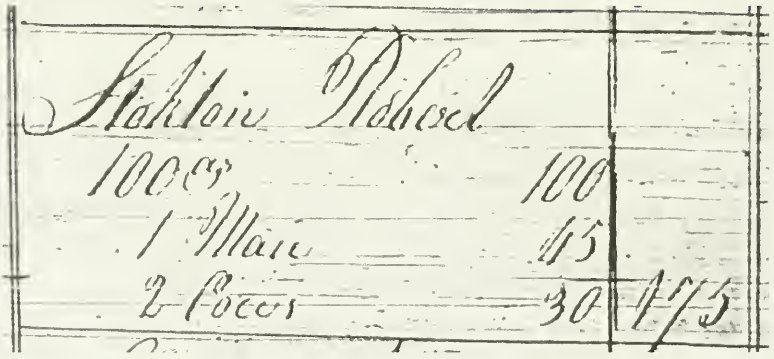
"Colonel Robert[4] Stockton (Robert[3], Thomas[2], Robert[1]) m. Miss Gallion. Children of Col. Robert and (Unknown) (Gallion) Stockton were Edward and Henrietta Stockton."[8]

The author could find no other record to confirm the identity of Edward Stockton and Henrietta Stockton.

Robert Stockton, his brother Rev. Joseph Stockton and brother-in-law John Cotton removed from Washington County to Crawford County in late 1800 or early 1801 and organized the First Presbyterian Church of Meadville. Church records indicate Robert Stockton and John Cotton were two of the first elders of the Church.[9, 10]

After moving to Crawford County, Robert Stockton purchased 105.25 acres in Crawford County from William and Anna Dick, Feb 27, 1802, for $300.00.[11]

Robert Stockton paid taxes on 100 acres of land in Sadsbury Township, Crawford County, beginning in 1801.



Sadsbury Township Tax Record, 1803[12]
Robert Stockton taxed for 100 acres

In the 1810 U.S. Census in Sadsbury Township, Crawford County, Robert Stockton was listed as head of family (male, age 26 thru 44). Also shown were an adult female (age 26-44), and seven children: 1 juvenile male (age 10-15), 1 juvenile female (age 10-15), 3 younger males (age <10) and 2 younger females (age <10).[13]

Robert[4] Stockton was born in 1771. In further analysis of the 1810 Census, Robert would be about 39 (i.e., census age 26-44); Mary born in 1779 would be about 31 (also age 26-44). The juvenile male and female (age 10-15) would be the two children born before the 1800 Census in Washington County and could be Edward and Henrietta.

It is known that son Robert[5] was born in 1801 (as stated on his tombstone), Thomas was born in 1804 and John about 1805, and that daughter Martha was born in 1807 and Maria in 1809. These would be the right age to be the 3 sons and 2 daughters age under 10, born after the 1800 Census.

This is new information to published history and needs further study.*

Robert[4] Stockton was reported to be a veteran of the War of 1812:

> Certainly, a grandson thought so. Warner (1885), in a biographical statement of William L. Stockton, grandson of Col. Stockton, states that Robert Stockton "served in the War of 1812 and was the Colonel of his regiment." [14]
> A card index, "Crawford Co. War Veterans," Crawford County Historical Society, states that Col. Robert Stockton, born 1772, died May 16, 1844, buried in Union Cemetery, Summit Township., was a veteran of the War of 1812. (There is a reference note to "Cr. Co. Hist. '85, p. 887, 893.")[15]

Yet, National Archives gave a "Negative Search" report for Robert Stockton (1771-1844) as an officer of the War of 1812.[16]

* See Appendix.

However, in a related investigation, National Archives wrote to the author that the War Department did not maintain or compile personnel files for regular army officers until 1863.[17]

There is further confirmation of Robert Stockton of Sadsbury and Vernon Townships, Crawford County, PA.

Sadsbury Township, Crawford County, Tax Records, 1801 to 1822, list Robert Stockton as owner of a 100-acre farm, one to two horses and one to two cows. US Census Records of 1810 and 1820 confirmed Robert Stockton as a resident of Sadsbury Township.[18, 19]

Robert was a trustee of Union Cemetery, Harmonsburg, in 1821, representing Eastern Sadsbury Township ("now Vernon Township").[20]

In 1821, Robert and six siblings were named in the will of their father, Robert Stockton of Washington County.

Robert Stockton was a tax collector for Sadsbury Township in 1822.[21]

Robert Stockton paid taxes for a 70-acre farm in Sadsbury Township from 1823 to 1825. (Sadsbury Township tax records list Nathan* Stockton paying taxes on the other 30 acres in 1823 and son Robert Stockton Jr. paying taxes on the 30 acres from 1824 to 1825.)[22]

From 1827 to 1830 Robert Stockton paid Sadsbury and Vernon Townships taxes on 50 acres, two horses and two to three cows. (Son Thomas Stockton paid taxes on the other 50 acres, 1827 to 1828, and son John McAmy Stockton paid taxes on the other 50 acres, 1830.)[23] (Fig. 13).

In 1829 Robert Stockton, his wife Mary and their daughter Maria Gallion Stockton ("Mrs. Ewing"), were admitted to the Harmonsburg Presbyterian Church. Other communicants of the early church included

In March 1829 Sadsbury Township was redefined. Northern and eastern parts were lost to create portions of three new townships: Hayfield, Summerhill and Vernon Townships.[26]

So, in 1830, Vernon Township Tax Records continue listing Robert Stockton as owner of a 50-acre farm, one or two horses and one to three cows. US Census Record of 1830 confirms Robert Stockton was a resident of Vernon Township.[27, 28]

In 1830, Col. Robert Stockton was one of twelve managers of the Konneyaut Lake Sabath School Union, Crawford County.[29]

Robert and Mary Stockton of Vernon Township, Crawford County, sold six acres to Stafford and Desolab Radure, Mar. 09, 1838.[30]

Mary Gallion Stockton preceded Robert in death Apr. 4, 1838, "58 yrs., 11 Mos., 12 Da.," and is buried in Union Cemetery.[31]

Robert Stockton assigned his lands to his son Thomas Stockton, Feb. 12, 1839.[32]

In 1839 and 1840 Robert Stockton is taxed for only one horse and a cow, no land.[33]

Robert Stockton died May 16, 1844, "72y, 10m, 17d," and is buried in Union Cemetery, Harmonsburg, Crawford County, PA.[34]

Children

Children of Col. Robert[4] and Mary Gallion Stockton as reported by Stockton (1911), but without other confirmation:[36]

Edward Stockton

Henrietta Stockton

Children of Col. Robert[4] and Mary Gallion Stockton as reported by Warner, et al (1885)[37]:

Robert[5] born. 1801, died 1885. Robert married Mary McDowell born 1804, died 1869. Robert was taxed in Sadsbury Township, 1823-25, Fallowfield Township, 1827-37, and Wayne Township, 1838-69, Crawford County, PA.[38] US Census reports of 1830-1880 confirm these locations.[39] Robert and Mary are buried in Cochranton Cemetery, Cochranton, PA.[40]

Thomas born August 18, 1804, died July 07, 1877. Thomas married Sarah Allen. Sarah was born May 27, 1822 and died April 16, 1902.[41, 42] US Census named nine children.[43] Their son, Robert Alexander Stockton born 1837, married Sarah E. Foust, February 15, 1859.[44] Robert died 1877 in Iowa of typhoid fever.[45] A daughter Emma Stockton b. 1852, married C. L. North, February 20, 1872.[46] Thomas took over his father's farm in Vernon Township, Crawford County.[47] His obituary appeared in the Evening Republican of July 21, 1877.[48]

John McAmy born about 1805, was a farmer of Mead and Hayfield Townships, Crawford County. John M. married Eliza Logan in 1833 and he died in 1872.[49] Warner (1885) named nine of their ten children.[50]

Martha born 1807, died May 05, 1870; married Isaac Kiser.[51] One World Tree names their eight children.[52]

Maria Gallion born July 05, 1809, died April 12, 1897; married

David Thurston Ewing born 1805. US Census named their seven children.[53]

Joseph, born 1811, died January 12, 1886; married Sarah (Unknown). Her obituary appeared in the Crawford Journal, February 16, 1899.[54] Both are buried at Kiser Hill Cemetery, Crawford County.[55] US Census named their six children.[56] Their son Richard was killed in a tragic logging accident in 1860, at 14 years of age.[57]

Sarah born about 1814; married James H. Davis, 1839.[58, 59]

David Bryce born about 1816. DB was a farmer of Sadsbury Township, Crawford County, PA and Busti Township, Chautauqua County, NY. He married 1) Martha Irwin March 10, 1838;[60] he married 2) Mrs. Amy Stockton, who died April 27, 1872 of heart disease in Busti, NY.[61] Later, he married 3) Amanda Cook.[62, 63]

James C. born January 28, 1818. James was a farmer and cabinet maker of Summit Township, Crawford County.[64] He died January 5, 1893 at Warren State Hospital.[65] His wife was Mary Calvin.[66] She died August 17, 1893.[67] Both are buried at Evergreen Cemetery, Harmonsburg, PA.[68] Their children were Mrs. Luella Harper born about 1852 and Mrs. Elvira Adsit born 1853, died 1895.[69]

The Pattern

The record of Col. Robert Stockton reflects that of an orderly person, willing to break away from the family hearth, but not far away. In youth, he hiked across the Allegheny Mountains of Southern Pennsylvania to Washington County with his parents. After he moved to Crawford County with his wife and family, he stayed put until his country called. He and his wife raised a big family, as the Scotch-Irish did. He went to war when his country needed him. He helped his brother build one Presbyterian church, then be helped his neighbors build another closer to home. He was a leader in his community, respected, an upstanding citizen by all accounts.

Most important to this study is that it appears that he remained throughout his life in a tight Scotch-Irish network. Even the local landmark, Conneaut Lake, was named to honor the Irish homeland.

Overview

There were two Robert Stocktons in Crawford County, PA, that paid taxes for land and property, 1824 thru 1840: Robert[4] Stockton of Vernon (formerly Sadsbury) Township, and Robert[5] Stockton Jr. of Sadsbury, Fallowfield and Wayne Townships. Here is the story:

Robert[4] Stockton had originally purchased 105 acres in Sadsbury Township, Crawford County, in 1802 after moving from Washington County.[1] (See Fig. 13)

Then, in 1824, when his first son Robert[5] reached adulthood, Robert[4] paid taxes on 70 acres and his son, Robert[5] Jr. paid taxes on the other 30 acres. (Fig. 20).

U.S. Census Reports confirm the residence of two Robert Stocktons in Crawford County: an older Robert Stockton family in Vernon Township (1830, 1840) and a younger Robert Stockton family in Fallowfield Township (1830) and later in Wayne Township (1840-1880).[5]

Robert died in 1885. He and his wife Mary are buried in Cochranton Cemetery, Cochranton, PA. (Fig. 18 and 19)

Biography

Robert[5] Stockton (1801-1885) was a son of Col. Robert[4] Stockton (1771-1845) and Mary Gallion Stockton (1779-1838), farmers of Vernon Township, Crawford County, PA.[6] [7]

About 1801, Robert's father moved the family from Washington County to Crawford County.[8] [9]

The author could not identify Robert's birth place in 1801, whether in Washington County before the move or in Crawford County after the move in early 1801.

Robert[5] Stockton m. Mary McDowell.[10]

Robert Jr. paid taxes on 30 acres of the family farm in Sadsbury Township from 1823 to 1825.[11]

From 1827 to 1837, Robert Stockton was taxed for 50 acres, and usually 1 or 2 cows and horses, in Fallowfield Township, Crawford County, a few miles south of his parents farm. In 1837, he was taxed also for the business of carpentry.[12]

From 1838 to 1848, Robert was taxed for 200 acres, horses and cows in Wayne Township, Crawford County.[13] This is confirmed by US Census in 1840.[14]

In 1841 and 1842, he purchased 200 acres from Henry and Catharine Antes and James and Agnes Cochran, in Wayne Township, in the sixth district of Donation Land No. 1295, eleven miles southeast of Meadville and 2 miles southeast of Cochranton, PA.[15]

Fig. 24

On current U.S.G.S. topographic maps, Wayne Township, there is "Stockton Corners," an intersection on Franklin Pike Rd., a mile or two southeast of Cochranton, PA.[16] Crawford County Plat Map of 1865 shows a farm owned by R. Stockton in Wayne Township, east of Cochranton at Stockton Corners.[17] According to a direct descendant, this was the site of the family farm and the former Stockton house is still in use.[18]

From 1849 to 1869, Robert Stockton was taxed for 100 to 150 acres, cows, horses, sometimes a buggy, sometimes for a dog. There was some loss from land sales and sometimes one of his sons would be taxed for a portion of the property.[19]

In 1850, the US Census reports Robert Stockton, farmer, 49, in Wayne Township, Crawford County; with wife Mary, 47; and children John, 22; Elizabeth, 20; Robert W, 17; Matthew, 18; Mary, 13; Phily, 11; Martha, 10; Sarah, 8; Esther, 6; and David A, 3.[20]

In 1850, Robert Stockton left the Cochranton Associated Reformed Presbyterian Church to join the Reformed Presbyterian Congregation (Seceder Church).[21] Robert and Mary Stockton were admitted to the Associated Reformed Church of Sugar Creek, the Rev. H. H. Thompson, pastor, February 18, 1850.[22]

In 1860, the US Census reports R. Stockdon [sic], farmer, 57; Mary, 56; Martha, 19; Sarah, 18; Esther, 16; Addison, 14; in Wayne Township, Crawford County.[23]

Mary (McDowell) Stockton died in 1869. She is buried in Sec. 5, Plot 49, Cochranton Cemetery, Cochranton, PA.[24]

In 1869, Robert sold 18 acres south of the Deckard road to "his son" R. W. Stockton for one dollar paid.[25]

In 1870, the US Census reported Robert Stockton, farmer, 69; daughter Esther, 25; son Adison [sic], 23; and Mary, 22; Wayne Township, Crawford County.[26] (Mary, 22, may have been David Addison's wife Mary Frances, b. 1848, but not Robert's daughter Mary, b. 1837.)

In 1877, Robert sold 27 acres north of the Deckard road to his son David Addison Stockton for four hundred dollars.[27]

In 1879, he sold another 32 acres to Peter Shoafstall, a neighbor, for one thousand dollars; then he repurchased the land in 1881, at the same price.[28]

In 1880, the US Census reported Robert Stockton, 79; living with two daughters, Elizabeth, 50; and Sarah, 38; Wayne Township, Crawford County. David Addison Stockton and family were reported next as on the next farm interviewed.[29]

In 1881, Robert sold the 150-acre farm (taxed at 100 acres), to his son, David, for one thousand dollars.[30]

Robert Stockton died in 1885. He is buried in Sec. 5, Plot 49, Cochranton Cemetery, Cochranton, PA.[31]

Children[32]

Children of Robert and Mary McDowell Stockton:

Thomas born February 1827, died October 12, 1849 of typhoid fever; buried in Seceder Cemetery, Crawford County, PA.[33] The cemetery takes its name from the French Creek Associate Presbyterian Church (or Seceder; pronounced as "Cedar") which formerly stood on the lot.[34]

John born July 28, 1828; married February 08, 1855, Margaret E. McMillen, Clarion, PA; died September 15, 1900, Grant County, OK; Civil War Veteran, 149th PA Volunteers.[35] John was a farmer of Iowa, Kansas and Oklahoma. John and Margaret had eight children.

Elizabeth born about 1830; married (Unknown) Woodruff.

Robert W. born 1833; married Hettie Lucas. He died August 20, 1895, Renfrew, Butler County, PA. He was a Civil War Veteran, 4th PA Cavalry Volunteers, Company G, Private.[36]

Matthew born May 1835, died September 10, 1854; buried Seceder Cemetery.[37]

Mary born 1837; married Robert Harvey. They had six children. Robert Harvey was a blacksmith in Cochranton.

Phoebe (Phily) Jane born March 1839; married Henry Houtz. They had nine children. Henry Houtz was a farmer in Wayne Township, Crawford County.

Martha born about 1840; married (Unknown) Reyser.

Sarah born 1843, died 1885; buried Cochranton Cemetery. Sarah never married.

Esther born about 1843; married Hester Stanford.

David Addison born October 1847; married Mary Frances Pauline Girard. He died May 17, 1920; buried in Cochranton Cemetery. Addison inherited his father's farm at Stockton Corners, Wayne Township.[38]

The Pattern

Robert[5] Stockton seems to break the pattern of characteristics that the Stockton family had shown for several generations. When he moved, which wasn't often, he stayed within or nearby the family circle. He seems to have been an upstanding citizen, as exemplified when he provided funds to a neighbor in need. He appears to be more closely related to his plodding Lowland Scots ancestry than to his grandfathers quest to climb over the Allegheny Mountains. With rare exception, he stayed put on his farm and neighboring community of Cochranton. He was, as his forebearers, deeply religious. In 1850, he left his Presbyterian Church. Perhaps, as with many of his contemporaries, he perceived a drift from fundamentalist teachings.

For the purpose of this work, however, he did marry within the Scotch-Irish network, thus maintaining a narrow Stockton bloodline another generation.

Robert W. Stockton died August 20, 1985. He and his wife Hettie are buried in Old Brookville Cemetery, Brookville, PA.[6]

Biography

Robert W. Stockton was the fourth child of Robert Stockton (1801-1885) and Mary (McDowell) Stockton (1804-1869), farmers of Wayne Township, Crawford County, PA.[7]

The family farm was located 2 miles southeast of Cochranton, PA, at a U.S.G.S. location known as "Stockton Corners."[8, 9]

Records of Seceder Cemetery (pronounced "'cedar"), where two of his brothers are buried, state his birth as about 1832.[10] However, his Civil War enlistment, backed up by family history, suggests 1833.[11]

In June 1850, R.W. was a 17 year old farm boy in Wayne Township, Crawford County.[12]

Sometime in the mid-1850's, R.W. married Hettie Lucas of Jefferson County. Something brought R.W. to this area. It may have been the hardwood logging of the Allegheny and Clarion Rivers in nearby Clarion and Forest Counties, where R.W. and Hettie lived off and on over the next twenty-five years, where he was employed as a sawyer.

It was difficult for the author to determine the spelling of her name, whether Hattie, Hatty, Hettie, or Hetty. US Census records are not a reliable source of the spelling of names, where she was called Hattie and Hettie. The obituary of her husband refers to her as "Mr. Stockton's wife." The death certificate of her son, T. L. Stockton, states his mother was "Miss Lucas." The obituary of her daughter, Mary Louella (Stockton) Snodgrass names her "Mrs. Robert Stockton". The genealogy of the family of Myrtle (Stilson) Stockton called her "Hatty." However, there is a Crawford County Recorder's deed in which her signature is copied as "Hettie." So, Hettie is the spelling in use here.[13]

Hettie Lucas was the daughter of James L. and Polly (Scott) Lucas, farmers of Clover Township, Jefferson County.[14]

The obituary for R.W. (Fig. 30), states that his wife was a cousin to L. C. Scott and Mrs. D. W. Gaither. These were children of George Scott, brother of Polly (Scott) Lucas. The obituary also says his wife was a niece to Johnson Scott, who was another brother of Polly (Scott) Lucas. The Lucas and Scott families were pioneer Pennsylvania farmers of Scotch-Irish descent, as were R.W.'s folks.

In 1856 and 1857, Robert W. paid taxes on 50 acres of the family farm in Wayne Township, Crawford County.[15] This suggests that Robert and Hettie were setting up housekeeping and/or building a home near his parents..

On June 09, 1858, daughter Mary Luella Stockton was born in Cochranton, Crawford County.[16]

In June 1860, R.W. Stocton [sic], Hattie [sic] and Mary, 1 year old, were in Barnett Township, Forest County.[17] The census report does not state his occupation. Barnett Township, Forest County is a few miles north of Hettie's family home in Jefferson County.

In December 1862, R.W. was in Crawford County. He had registered a purchase of 150 acres of land in Barnett Township, Forest County, from Edward Shippen for $477.12.[18]

On April 06, 1863, son Thomas Lawrence Stockton was born "near Meadville," Crawford County.[19]

Then, a year later, his country called! On February 22, 1864, at Waterford, Amity Township, Erie County, Robert W. Stockton volunteered in the 4th Pennsylvania Cavalry.[20] He was 31 years old, 5 feet 5-1/2 inches tall, had black hair, gray eyes, and was of fair complexion. He served with distinction as a private of Company G and was mustered out July 01, 1865 at Lynchburg, VA, with his outfit. A description of the 4th PA Cavalry during this period reads in part:[21]

Robert W. Stockton was wounded in line of duty by gun shot in the right side near Richmond, VA, on June 11, 1865, and was honorably discharged at Lynchburg on July 01, 1865.[22]

During and after the War, from 1864 to 1869, R.W. Stockton (or Stockdon [sic]) paid taxes on 150 acres, Warrant 3145, in Barnett Township, Forest County. These taxes were paid on land with buildings.

not unimproved land.[24]

Also, during the same period from 1864 to 1869, R.W. paid taxes on 50 acres in Wayne Township, Crawford County, part of the family farm. Some years, he paid taxes for 1 or 2 horses and 1 or 2 cows.[25]

Son William F. Stockton was born a year after the War in July 1866.[26]

Daughter Caroline Stockton was born on February 22, 1868, in Cochranton, PA.[27]

In 1869, his mother died.

On November 19, 1869, R.W. purchased an 18-acre home site in Wayne Township, Crawford County, from his father for $1.00.[28] The land is described as the place of Robert W.'s residence.

Sometime during the 1860's or 1870's, "Bob Stockton" was an early settler of Guitonville, a lumber mill town in Forest County, where pine, oak and chestnut lumber were transported down Bear Creek to Tionesta Creek and then down the Allegheny River to Pittsburgh. "Bob Stockton" and other early settlers worked the mill and bought and cleared lands.[29] Guitonville is an older logging village in Green Township, a few miles north of the 150-acre, R.W. Stockton farm in Barnett Township.

In July 1870, Robert Sogden [sic], Hettie, Mary (age 12), Thomas (age 7), William (age 4) and Caroline (age 2) were in Kingsley Township, Forest County. R.W. was employed as a "sawyer on sawmill."[30] Guitonville, Green Township, is nearby, close to the Kingsley Township line.

Son James Stockton was born about 1874.[31]

In 1876 , Robert W. and Hettie were residents of President Township, Venango County.[32] President is a former logging mill town on the Allegheny River just west of Forest County.

The same year, they sold their 18-acre farm home in Wayne Township.

Crawford County.[33]

In 1877, their daughter Mary Luella (Ella) Stockton married Benjamin F. Snodgrass in Lickingville, Washington Township, Clarion County.[34] Lickingville is another older sawmill town just south of Forest County. Later, Ben Snodgrass ran a store and ferry at President, Venango County, on the Allegheny River at the turn of the century.[35]

In June 1880, Robert W. Stockton, Hattie [sic], Thomas (age 17), William (age 12), Caroline (age 10) and James (age 6) were in Beaver Valley, Forest County. Robert was "head sawyer in sawmill." The job must have been seasonal as R.W. had been unemployed for 3 months during the year (a common occurrence in the logging industry even today).[36]

Beaver River is tributary to the Allegheny River at East Hickory, north of Tionesta, the county seat of Forest County.

The author did not find further reference to Hettie Stockton until her husband's obituary in 1895, where it is said that she had "died some years ago." She is buried in Old Brookville Cemetery, but there is no record of her tombstone.[37]

In August 1882, R.W. Stocklin [sic] was a member of the Capt. George Stowe Post, No. 274, G. A. R. A footnote by his name indicates that he had been wounded in battle.[38]

In 1883, Robert W. Stockton was a resident of Tylersburg, Farmington Township, Clarion County. Tylersburg is near Lickingville, a few miles southwest of Guitonville.

In Tylersburg, August 1883, R.W. applied for a Civil War pension declaring to have "received a wound in rite side", in line of duty in 1865, near Richmond, VA, and to be partly disabled. However, the wound or disability was not confirmed by the War Department and his petition was denied.[39] [40]

Son James died about 1886, 12 years old.[41]

Then, in 1890, R.W. was a resident of Marienville, Forest County. Marienville, in Jenks Township, is just east of Green Township and north of Barnette Township, Forest County.[42]

In Marienville, July 1890, R.W. applied a second time for a pension, this under the Act of June 27, 1890, in that he was partially unable to earn a support, that he had received a gun shot wound at Richmond, VA.[43] However, Robert W.'s name does not appear in current lists of pensioned Union soldiers.

Robert W. Stockton died August 20, 1895 in Renfrew, Butler County, PA. His body was transported by train to Clarion, Clarion County, and then to Brookville, Jefferson County, PA, where he was buried in Old Brookville Cemetery with his wife. There is no record of his tombstone.[44]

The obituary (Fig. 30) states that his son, T. L. Stockton was a resident of Jamestown, NY. Another son, William F. Stockton, was a resident of Renfrew (which may explain why R.W. was in Renfrew at the time of his death). One of his daughters, Mrs. Mary Luella Snodgrass was living in President, PA. Another daughter, Mrs. Caroline Bowman, was living in Clarion, PA.[45]

Children

Children of Robert W. and Hettie Lucas Stockton:

Mary Luella (known as Ella) born June 9, 1858; died January 25, 1923; buried Mt. Collins Cemetery, Tionesta, Forest County, PA, married Benjamin F. Snodgrass, September 16, 1877. Children of Mary Luella and Benjamin Snodgrass were Bertha M., born 1878, died 1957; Robert Franklin, born 1882, died 1966; Verna Maude, born 1885, died 1908; Daisy Adele, born 1886, died 1968 in Oil City, PA; Ellen Arstella, born 1889, died 1976; Aura Clair, born 1891, died 1918; Frederick Augustus, born 1893; and Rosa E., born 1898.

He Was a Soldier.

We mentioned last week the burial, in the old graveyard, of R. W. Stockton, on Thursday morning. Mr. Stockton died at Renfrew, Butler county, on the 20th instant, of paralysis. The remains were brought to Clarion on Wednesday, and Thursday morning were brought to Brookville, where they were laid to rest beside those of his wife, who died some years ago. A detail of comrades from E. R. Brady Post, G. A. R., attended the burial, extending the last courtesy one soldier can show another.

Deceased was a member of Company G, Fourth Penn'a Cavalry, and was mustered out with the regiment at the close of the war. He leaves four children, T. L. Stockton, of Jamestown, N. Y.; W. F. Stockton, of Renfrew, Butler county; Mrs. B. F. Snodgrass, of President, Venango county; and Mrs. C. M. Bowman, of Clarion; all of whom thank the soldier boys of E. R. Brady Post for their kindness in attending the funeral. Mr. Stockton's wife, buried here some years ago, was a cousin to L. C. Scott, Mrs. D. W. Gaither, and Mrs. Wm. Knapp, and a niece to Johnston Scott, her mother being "Polly Lucas," well known to the older citizens of Brookville.

Some Questions

Robert W. Stockton was a man with two farm homes to maintain. Sometimes, he was Robert W. Stockton, a farmer in Crawford County. Sometimes, he was Bob Stockton, a sawmill sawyer in Forest County. There is no other indication that there were two Robert W. Stocktons in this part of Pennsylvania.

Were these events part and parcel of the seasonal nature of the logging industry? Or was there something else at work? Perhaps sometimes.

* Van Kirk Stockton was b. 1895 according to Butler County Birth Records, US Census (1900), World War I Draft Card and Social Security Death Index; his tombstone states he was b. 1896.

 Van Kirk Stockton was b. 1895 according to Butler County Birth Records, US Census (1900), World War I Draft Card and Social Security Death Index; his tombstone states he was b. 1896.

something pulled him to go his own way, be his own man? Yet, other times, something else pulled him back to his childhood home?

This also leads to another question: Why did Robert and Hettie return back to Cochranton for family support for the birthing of first Mary, then Thomas, then Caroline? A first time, maybe, before the War. But a second and then a third after the War?

If it is appropriate to subjectively think about a series of events in a hard work of genealogy, perhaps this is such an event: a soldier, witness to the most horrible events of men against men, wounded in mind and body, and now returning home from war. It would not be the first time that a soldier had difficulty adjusting to a civilian lifestyle, searching for his beginnings, but unable for long to live the old life of his youth. Needless to say this was a troubling period in the life of Robert W. However, it would appear that his ambivalence about life on the farm began long before the War, in the 1850's, as witness his wandering a day's journey from Cochranton to marry Hettie from Jefferson County.

The Pattern

Robert W. Stockton was a troubled man. He couldn't or wouldn't remain on the family farm. Perhaps, farming wasn't his thing. His war experiences were a pain in his side, literally. He loved working in the sawmill, but logging was a part-time business. As the sawyer of a sawmill, he had the top job, he would have had the highest salary. He would have been the leader of his sawmill crew. His wife died at about 50 years of age, leaving him to shift with his Civil War comrades. Altogether, history suggests that he wasn't a happy camper.

However, history records that his wife was from an old and established line of Scotch-Irish settlers in Pennsylvania. For this study, the bloodline is maintained tightly structured one more generation.

The 1923 obituary of R.W.'s daughter, Mary Louella Snodgrass, names her brother, T. L.[7] Stockton of Los Angeles, CA. (Fig. 32).[4]

Thomas Lawrence Stockton, and his wife Myrtle are buried in Valhalla Memorial Park, North Hollywood, CA.

Biography

Thomas Lawrence Stockton (known usually by his middle name) born April 6, 1863, Crawford County, PA, died January 25, 1937, Los Angeles, CA.[5]

T. Lawrence Stockton married Myrtle Estelle Stilson. Their only child was Dr. Frank William Stockton, D.D.S. Dr. Stockton practiced dentistry in Los Angeles (Hollywood), Glendale and Santa Cruz, CA.

There is an 1870 US Census report of Robert Sogden [sic], sawyer at sawmill, wife Hettie, and children: Mary, 12; Thomas, 7; William, 4; and Caroline, 2; in Kingsley Township, Forest County, PA.[6]

In 1880 Thomas Stockton, age 17, was at home with parents Robert W. and Hattie [sic] Stockton in Beaver Valley, Forest County. His father was head sawyer at the sawmill. His siblings were: William, 12, Caroline, 10, and James, age 6.[7]

Stillson, 1939, also tells that T. Lawrence Stockton in his early years went to Seattle, Washington, but returned east to engage in the lumber business with his father.[8]

Perhaps T. Lawrence Stockton and Myrtle Stilson, were married in Sugar Grove, PA, or at the ancestral Stilson home nearby, but there is no record of their marriage.[9]

In 1895 Frank W. Stockton was born in Sugar Grove, Warren County, PA, of T. Lawrence and Myrtle S. Stockton.[10]

In 1900, 1910, and 1920, Lawrence, Myrtle and Frank were in Jamestown, NY, where Lawrence was a carpenter and building contractor. In 1920, their address was 8 Hall Ave., Jamestown, NY.[11]

In 1921 the Stockton family moved west to Los Angeles, CA.[12] Family stories tell that Myrtle went by train; the men drove by car.

In 1923, the obituary of Mary Louella (Stockton) Snodgrass of President, PA, named her father Robert Stockton, her sister Caroline Bowman, and her surviving brothers: T. L. Stockton of Los Angeles and W. L. [sic] Stockton of Oklahoma.[13]

In 1930, T. Lawrence and Myrtle were living at 1738 Nichols Canyon Rd, Los Angeles (Hollywood), CA, off Hollywood Blvd.[14]

The least documented source of information about T. Lawrence Stockton is the memory of their grandfather by Robby and Billy, and perhaps by Frances, six years old at his death. James and Grace were not with them, yet.

> Robert remembers his grandparents home in Nichols Canyon near Hollywood Blvd. and the fig tree in the back yard. It was so smooth-barked that as a child, he couldn't climb it. The home was filled with beautiful old furniture his grandparents had brought west from their earlier home in Jamestown, NY. Robert remembers Grandpa's big black leather chair stuffed with horse hair and the mahogany dining room set.
> Bill remembers that Grandpa had been a master wood carver and that Grandpa had made many pieces of the household furniture. Bill also talks about stories he heard that Grandpa Stockton had hand-carved an alter for one of the churches in Seattle in his earlier days.
> In Los Angeles, Grandpa was somewhat invalid from a construction accident in Jamestown and finally needed extra care and support, more than Grandma could give him alone. So when Robert was in the fifth grade, his father bought a big fraternity house near Los Angeles City College and Grandpa and Grandma moved in with them.

> In his later years, Grandpa's mind sometimes wasn't too sharp; a result of the construction accident back East. Bill, remembers an incident that Robert doesn't: One day Grandpa wandered off somewhere in Hollywood, accompanied by the family chow dog, Mong. According to Bill's recollection, Mong brought Grandpa home and saved the day.

There is another source of the parents and siblings of Thomas Lawrence Stockton, one that is not as authentic, but one that has proven to be on-the-mark. This is a document which the author has labeled "Girard-Stockton Family Knowledge" and which later on was identified as the work of Helen Pattison Freyermuth, a cousin of Frank Stockton.[15]

In 1937 Thomas Lawrence Stockton died of "cerebral apoplexy". His death certificate states his birth, April 6, 1862, President [sic], PA, and his death, January 25, 1937, Los Angeles, CA. It states his wife's name, Myrtle E. Stockton, his father, Robert Stockton, and his mother, Miss Lucas.[16] However, the birth date and place, as entered by Dr. John Welborn, M.D., should be questioned: Thomas Lawrence Stockton was born in 1863 as written in the 1900 US Census, as stated by Stillson (1939), and as cast in bronze on his gravestone. Also, according to Stillson (1939), he was born "near Meadville," as were his sisters Mary and Caroline.[17] [18] This probably was at the ancestral home at "Stockton Corners," 10 miles south of Meadville.

Thomas and Myrtle are both buried in Valhalla Memorial Park, North Hollywood, California.[19]

Child

The only child of Thomas Lawrence Stockton and Myrtle Estelle Stilson Stockton was Dr. Frank William Stockton, born January 30, 1895, Warren County, PA., died March 10, 1983, Santa Cruz, CA.

The Pattern

Thomas Lawrence Stockton was smart and talented with his hands, a most universal trait of his ancestors. He too left his father's hearth; his aim to seek his fortune out west, but soon he returned home at his father's calling.

It was T. Lawrence that broke the family tradition by taking a bride of English descent, marrying outside the Scotch-Irish network. Even so, his wife Myrtle Stilson, was of old New England pioneer stock, her grandfather having settled in Pennsylvania a century earlier, after dragging the family goods through wilderness forest trails on an ox-driven sled.

With this marriage, a few years before 1900, there finally begins the opening of the Stockton bloodline into the mixing bowl of America.

Overview

The birth certificate of Frank William[8] Stockton names his father, T. Lawrence Stockton, his mother, Myrtle S. Stockton, and his place of birth, Sugar Grove, Warren County, PA. (Fig. 40).

Frank W. Stockton was raised in Jamestown, NY; graduated from the University of Michigan, School of Dentistry, in 1918; served his country briefly thereafter; moved with his parents to Los Angeles in 1921; married Miriam Adelia Pike in 1922; and died in Santa Cruz, CA, in 1983. (Family knowledge)

The death certificate of Frank William[8] Stockton states his father was Lawrence T. [sic] Stockton of Pennsylvania; his mother's maiden name was Myrtle Stilson. (Fig. 41).

Biography

Frank W. Stockton, born January 30, 1895, Sugar Grove Borough, Warren County, PA. However, there had been some uncertainty about the year of his birth. His World War I draft registration card[3], his mother's genealogy[4] and family knowledge[5] state "1896," but Warren County[6] recorded his birth in 1895 and his death certificate and tombstone say "1895."

In 1900, 1910 and 1920 the Stockton family resided in Jamestown, NY.[7]

Frank Stockton registered for the draft in 1918, with residence in Jamestown, NY.[8]

Frank William Stockton graduated from the University of Michigan in 1918 with the degree of Doctor of Dental Science. He served in the U. S. Army Dental Corps after graduation.[9] [10]

The Stockton family moved to Los Angeles, CA, in 1921; his mother and house furnishings by train; his father and he by auto.[11]

Frank and Miriam were married May 02, 1922.[12]

As I look back at our family history, I realize now that Dad's roots were thrifty, hard working pioneer farmers of northwestern Pennsylvania: his mother, a third generation Stilson of Warren County; his father, a fourth generation Stockton of Crawford County.

Dad was a good provider to his family. During the Depression of the 1930's, we were a two-car family when many were not so fortunate. He was generous to a fault to others, but Mother once told me she was on a short allowance to finance the family budget.

He was the professional dentist, skilled and talented. In the 1920's he was a dentist to several Stars of Hollywood with an office on Hollywood Blvd. Later, he moved his practice into our home where he pioneered in the use of stainless steel to provide dental orthodontia to young people (myself included), in an era of very expensive traditional materials.

Dad was adept with his hands, with an agile mind. He built a 4-room cabin in the San Bernardino National Forest, with a large river-rock fireplace and chimney that dominated the living room. He installed an indoor chemical toilet (no water). There was water piped to the kitchen sink, but no electricity, only Coleman lanterns. Mom had a large cast-iron wood burning stove to cook on and to provide heat. We spent many school holidays and winter and summer vacations in the mountains above Redlands.

He built a bedroom addition to our two-bedroom home in West Hollywood after little Frances was old enough to need her own bedroom. He built a small sailboat with drop-centerboard in the backyard of our house in Hollywood, from plans that he had ordered from a magazine.

Later, he built a 24-ft. trailer and we took it to the 1939 Worlds Fair in New York and back; it had drop-canvas sides years before similar RV's became popular. He built our beautiful home in Glendale, contracting out the architect, carpenters, plasters, plumbers, and painters.

There was the tradition of his religious heritage. He spent long hours in self study of the Bible. He provided a layman ministry on the streets and in the jails of local communities. He was passionate about his faith to the point of contention with friends and family that did not share his passion.

One anecdote is worth mentioning, an event that happened when I was about ten or twelve years old. At breakfast, the family had a small ceramic tray on the breakfast table that contained cards with bible verses, like the go-to-jail cards in a Monopoly game. Each morning, we were required to take one card and memorize the bible verse. In the evening at the dinner table we were to quote that verse from memory.

For several years, we were a family orchestra: Dad played the trombone, Mom the accordion, Bill the clarinet, and Robert on cornet. We played on street corners in Glendale, in mission ministries in Los Angeles, and in churches of the area. One Sunday morning we went to the radio station in Beverly Hills and played hymns.

Dad was an only child of a devoted mother. Grandma Stockton lived with us for several years and was always a presence in our family. She lived to be 93 years old.

Commentary

The ancestry of the Stockton family of Pennsylvania has been traced back to emigrant Robert Stockton. There are records of Chester and Lancaster Counties, PA, during the years 1732 to 1747. It would appear that Robert came to Pennsylvania in mid-life, with wife Isabella and at least three children: Thomas, Robert and David.

The identity of Robert Stockton's origin and/or ancestors has not been proven by traditional means. Where did they come from? Why did they suffer the long voyage across the Atlantic? Who were they? The evidence points to the Scotch-Irish of Ulster, Ireland, in the Seventeenth Century and Scotland in the Sixteenth Century.

Here are things worth considering.

Robert, his sons, grandsons, and great-grandsons were active members of their local Presbyterian Church until 1850. The Presbyterian Church was the traditional Kirk of Scotland.

These Stocktons were settlers of Scotch-Irish communities in their 160-year migration across Pennsylvania. They married spouses of Presbyterian Scotch-Irish descent until the late 1800's.

They consistently named their children to honor biblical characters and legendary heros of Scotland, especially Robert Bruce and William Wallace.

It would seem prudent that Stockton family members should look to Scotland, and especially to Lowland Scotland, for understanding of their inheritance.

The Promised Land of Pennsylvania

Robert could have arrived in Pennsylvania during the Second Great Wave of Ulster Scots from Ireland to the Delaware River ports of Pennsylvania. The Second Wave occurred from 1725 to 1729, or three to seven years before Robert's name first appeared in Chester County in 1732.[1]

Poverty was a principle cause of this migration. Ninety percent of Scotch-Irish immigrants could not pay for their passage. Instead, they signed on for a period of indenture to secure passage. Terms of indenture were regulated by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. For the most part, this wasn't a bad deal; it wasn't like the slave trade. William Penn wanted settlers, not slaves. The period of indenture was four to seven years after which they were given funds, equipment and arms with which to begin a new life.[2]

So, the years from 1725 to 1732 would have allowed sufficient time for the family to complete a debt of indenture, if this is what really happened.

The Land of Ulster

Robert Stockton was a dirt farmer, not a landlord or tradesman. Looking back in time to Ulster, there was a logical sequence of events leading from poverty to immigration during this period.

Robert and his father would have been tenant farmers, leasing their lands from an English nobleman, as was the custom of Ulstermen of 1700. Then, "rack-rents" of leased farmlands in Ireland in the early 1700's displaced thousands of Ulstermen to begging in the streets.[3]

It was common for a lease of farmland in Ulster to be for a thirty-one year term, which would place a Stockton lease beginning about 1695, if this is what really happened. Doing the math, the family could have migrated from Scotland no later than the early 1690's.

Scotland

In Scotland, the "lean years" (1690-1695), the "killing times" and "Covenanter troubles" (1660-1679) caused a great many Scots to migrate to Ulster in the 1690's.[4]

So, the author looks at Scottish History and the people of Feudal Lowland Scotland in further search of "Who am I?".

The Religion

One cannot speak of the Scotch-Irish without including a discussion about their religion and their religious fervor.

In 1560, a religious event swept over Lowland Scotland, replacing the Catholic Church with the upstart Presbyterian Church as the "Kirk of Scotland." The noblemen of Scotland, through their Parliament, determined that they could support John Knox's Reformation, drive out the Catholic priests, and thereby gain land and property of the Catholic Church for their own enrichment. Also, ordinary people of Lowland Scotland listened to Knox and took his harsh Calvinist religion into their hearts and souls. A stern God was the perfect fit to their stern lifestyle.

Many of the Northern Highlanders remained with their Catholic faith, but Presbyterianism became the established Kirk of Scotland by 1592.

The Presbyterian Church required their pastors to complete a college education. These pastors thereafter provided religious teachings in local schools, administered a form of local government to enforce personal moral conduct and appointed laymen to church offices for citizen participation in the business of the Church. In effect, each pastor became the local judge, mayor, sheriff and school teacher of his community. Most significant, any male citizen could become a Presbyterian pastor, a man of standing in a land of little opportunity, if he applied himself.

Knox, himself, had called for a national system of education. Thus, in 1696, Scotland's Parliament passed its "Act for Setting Schools," which established a school in every parish in Scotland. By 1750, male literacy in Lowland Scotland "may have stood as high as 75 percent, compared with only 53 percent in England."[5]

The Presbyterian Church was organized with governing bodies in which laymen directly participated, a bottoms up form of government. For example, the Church did not have Bishops, as the English did, to come between the people and their God.

Religious issues between England and Scotland were based on issues such as whether the king could appoint church bishops or whether the King was subject to God's rules (i.e. the Church). This was not quite an issue of separation of church and state. It was more an issue whether authority rested in the people to elect their church and political leaders or whether the king had authority over church affairs. People felt persecuted and actually went to war over issues about church organization, not church doctrine, beliefs or teachings.

To sum up the situation, the Presbyterian Church became the foundation of every-day life of Scot, Ulster and Scotch-Irish families during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Bible stories of the Israelites, the march through the wilderness and the hardships they faced, resonated in their own daily strife for survival. Religious fervor quickly became the focus of "Instruction of The Children," remaining at high heat through generation after generation for two hundred years and longer in some family lines.

The Scotch-Irish

Scotch-Irish refers to inhabitants of the United States and, by some, of Canada who are of Ulster Scottish descent.[6]

Leyburn (1989) wrote about five great waves of emigration from Protestant Ulster to the Colonies, from 1717 to 1775. Each wave of migration occurred during periods of great hardships in Ireland, such as prolonged periods of severe weather, religious persecutions and wars, followed by periods of relative security when migration waned.[7]

Each of these five great waves of immigration had preferred points of entry into the colonies. Boston was the port of many immigrants of the first wave, but the Puritans of New England quickly told them to move on. North Carolina was an attractive haven to colonist of the fourth wave, 1754-1755.

During the second wave of 1725 to 1729, with favorable enticements, Pennsylvania developed a reputation as the land-of-milk-and-honey and was preferred by most immigrants. The Delaware River and the ports of Philadelphia and Chester, PA, became major points of entry.

The People

The Scotch-Irish people were not hard to find. You wouldn't have known them by the clothes they wore, unlike their Pennsylvanian neighbors, the Quakers. You wouldn't have recognized them by their speech, unlike the German families down the road. But you would know them when you met one.

James Logan, Provincial Secretary to William Penn, is said to have written: "A settlement of five families from the north of Ireland gives me more trouble than fifty of any other people."[8]

Historians write of a unique people forged in misfortune, united in their religious fervor, and independent of any authority but God.

> "The Scot-Irish who settled in America were descendants of the Lowland Scots who were robust, adventurous, and rebellious. There is no architectural style or type of furniture attributed to them so, in turn, there are no known artifacts surviving that are specific to the Scot-Irish. But the legacy they did leave behind for future generations is their religion. In each settlement they built a church in which to practice their Presbyterian faith.[9]
> "The Scot-Irish were nomadic."[10]
> "It is said that no Scotch-Irish family felt comfortable until it had moved at least twice."[11]
> "They didn't have many culinary skills.... Their music, unlike the Highlanders with their bagpipes, was played on fiddles and dulcimers.[12]

"The Scotch Irish have never claimed that they brought literature or art to these shores. They knew little of the former and nothing of aesthetics. Diaries and letters of the migration period do not exist and perhaps never did exist. Let us speak frankly. Every race brings to our western civilization a gift of its own. These people from Ulster cared very little for the beautiful, with the single exception of the wonderful and beautiful Bible story. Even the New Testament they handled as a laborer might touch a Sevres vase reverently but rudely.[13]

"The Scotch Irish could not see that the severe lines of a cabin are softened by a sumac against the south wall or a creeper at the corner. They did not trim the edge of the roadway that led to the front door. In short, utility required nothing of these things and utility was their law. For the same reason, if the soles of their feet were tough they saw small need of shoes in summer. Their bare feet, however, gave something of a shock to century-old New England."[14]

"The Presbyterian Scots never had a pacifist background as did the Anabaptist Palatines."[15] [Protestant German emigrants of the period.]

The Scotch-Irish, after a hundred years of engaging the natives in Ireland, were particularly suited for the independent life of the frontier. They were in the leading edge of the push of civilization westward, providing a buffer against hostile Indians who still inhabited the Appalachian "wilderness." Andrew Jackson, Ulysses S. Grant, James Polk, Davy Crockett, Kit Carson and many other American heroes were of Scotch-Irish origins.

Another type of Scotch-Irish settlers were farmers who purchased farmland that had been somewhat settled. For some, the support of a community and it's church and school was important.

A third type of Scotch-Irish were the middle-class, conservative businessmen who were more comfortable living in established towns on the seaboard.[16]

Pennsylvania Settlement

Perhaps ninety percent of Ulster immigrants were too poor to pay for their passage to the colonies. It is said that successful men did not leave their comfortable homes to endure the hardship of the colonies unless led by an overwhelming quest for adventure. Instead, the greater majority of Ulster immigrants received their passage through indentured service for a period of time.

Indentured service was regulated by colonial law. After indenture, the immigrant was to be provided with money, tools and weapons to provide for the settling of the Commonwealth.

At first, early settlements from Delaware River ports were in adjacent Chester and Lancaster Counties. Later settlers spread across the Great Valley of Pennsylvania. Thereafter, confronted by the inhospitable Allegheny mountains and Indian uprisings to the west, many settlers moved south into the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia and the back country of the Carolinas.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, as befitting a Quaker government, legally purchased large blocks of land from local Indian tribes as needed to provide for new settlements. In turn, settlers were to obtain their lands by legal purchase from the Commonwealth. Purchased land had a lawful history of acquisition and was peacefully accepted by native Indian tribes.

But many of the Scotch-Irish settlers took up lands by "squatting" believing that God was providing this land for His chosen people. Squatting was looked upon by the Commonwealth as taking land from Indian ownership, displacing native Indian tribes. There was concern that squatting would generate Indian hostility and retaliation.

Indian hostility to squatting by the Scotch-Irish was a significant element of the French and Indian Wars of 1754-1763. It wasn't until after the French and Indian Wars that colonists would push across the Alleghenies into Western Pennsylvania and Kentucky.

Chambersburg, in York County (later Franklin County) was an important staging point for the settler's before moving into southwestern Pennsylvania.

The route that settlers might have taken to "remove" from Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, to Washington or Pittsburgh, after the Revolutionary War, probably was south-west across the Great Plain of Pennsylvania and Maryland to the Potomac River at Williamsport, near Hagerstown. Then, they would have traveled up the Potomac to Fort Cumberland [Cumberland, MD], then over the Alleghenies Mountains on Braddock's Road.

Braddock's Road was a cleared trail 12-ft. wide, constructed in 1755-1756 during the French and Indian Wars. To attack the French at Fort Duquesny (later Fort Pitt, near Pittsburgh), Gen. Braddock hauled eight-inch howitzers, pulled by nine-horse teams, up this trail. The road was abandoned by the military in 1765. George Washington traversed the original Indian trail in 1753 and later, in 1784, he rode horseback on Braddock's Road to scout out a better pathway for settlers to travel into western Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Braddock's Road, from Fort Cumberland to Fort Duquesny, traversed up Braddock Creek between Dans and Piney Mountains, through Big Savage Mountain, Meadow Mountains, and Negro Mountains, MD. It then went across Winding Ridge on the State line, dropping into Youghiogheny River Valley, passing Old Fort Necessity to the Monongahela River, and finally down the Monongahela to Fort Duquesny.

As settlers moved west, additional counties were formed around them. The Robert Stockton family was in the forefront of this settling of Pennsylvania.

> Lancaster County was formed in 1729; Robert[1] Stockton was recorded there in 1732.

York County was formed in 1749; Thomas[2] Stockton was recorded there in 1750.

Washington County was formed in 1781; Robert[3] Stockton was recorded there in 1784.

Crawford County was formed in 1800; Robert[4] Stockton was recorded there in 1802.

Background

Genealogy is not always an exact science. The author has followed the path of his family history back to 1732, to Robert Stockton (c. 1688-1747), Chester County, PA, USA. The trail ends there; but the date is immediately after the "Second Great Wave of Immigration" of Ulster Scots, from Ireland. Robert Stockton and his descendants were devout Presbyterians (the "Kirk of Scotland") and were associated with and intermarried with descendants of other Scotch-Irish immigrants.

Robert Stockton, PA, and Davis Stockton, VA, two Stockton family immigrants, were possibly brothers, at the least cousins. It has been suggested that the family immigrated from Ulster, Ireland, that they were descendants of earlier Lowland Scotch immigrants to Ulster in the 1600's. However, historians tell us that no record exists of the Robert Stockton Family of Pennsylvania, in Ireland or in Scotland.[1] *

It may be that before 1700 A.D. the Robert Stockton family name was something other than Stockton. So, if he is not of Stockton blood, the author asks: "Who am I?" Would a deep ancestry study of family DNA help to answer the question?

With apology to traditional genealogy and to a professional's need for hard evidence, there is a lot of guessing in this section. At best, it is analysis that could provide a clue to future researchers. At worst, it is mere supposition, but here it is without apology.

yDNA Tests

Family Tree DNA (FTDNA) has tested the author's yDNA (a male thing). Both "STR" and "SNP" DNA tests have been completed.

FTDNA has classified the author as a member of "Haplogroup I1d L22+

* There is history of Richard Stockton, NJ (?-1707) and of his English origins and of Stockton Manor in Malpas, England. His descendants are Hg G, no relation to Hg I Stocktons.

P109-." (i.e.: Hg I1d; positive test for subclade L22; negative test for subclade P109).

Here are some explanations of this very new science.

Haplogroup I: Haplogroup I (Hg I, "eye," not "one") is one of 20 groups of humans on the Homo sapiens "Tree of Life." Haplogroups are labeled A through T, with Hg A being the human population living some 200,000 years ago in southern Africa, represented as the trunk of the Tree of Life. Hg I is one branch of the Tree.

The time of the Most Recent Common Ancestor (MRCA) of Hg I occurred during the Last Glacial Maximum period (LGM), about 25,000-30,000 years ago. About one-fifth the population of Europe is Hg I, with greater percent of population being in Scandinavia and northern Germany. Some 40% of Swedes and 30 % of Finns, Danes, Germans and Icelanders are members of Hg I.[2]

Haplogroup I1: The time of MRCA of Hg I1 may have occurred after LGM, about 4,000 to 6,000 years ago, perhaps in Denmark, although some authorities date the occurrence as early as 20,000 years ago. The greater percent of population of Hg I1 today is in western Finland, about 40%. Hg I1 comprises 50% of the province of Satakunta, on the shores of the Sea of Bothnia in southwestern Finland. Lesser populations, about 35%, are in southern Norway, southwestern Sweden, and Denmark.[3]

Haplogroup I1d: Ken Nordtvedt, a physicist and researcher of Hg I1 and their origins, states the time of MRCA of Hg I1d was about 3000 years ago.[4]

L22: Thiemo Walrecht of The Netherlands, an L22 DNA researcher, wrote the author:

> At this time little information is available on L22 and its subclades, but our ancestors were part of Nordic/Germanic Bronze Age, and were therefor Germanic. They were no part of the West-Germanic (i.e. Angles, Saxons, Frisians, Franks, etc.), > and probably they were part of the North-Germanic (Scandinavians).[5]

> Published reports by FTDNA also include charts of the percent of current members within a country, with 12- Marker DNA matches, to total members tested within that country. Percentages above 2% are considered significant indicators of a family's origins. Only Iceland (2.8%) and Finland (2.0%) "are considered significant indicators of your family's origins."[6]

There is little other literature describing Haplogroup I1d L22+ P109-. What does this academic equation contribute to our knowledge of our family history? Maybe we will know more in ten years or so.

MyDNA Cousins

There are over 175 individuals in the author's MyDNA family of distant cousins. These are individuals who have been tested for their 12-marker STR yDNA (an entry level genealogy test), with either an "Exact Match" or "Genetic Distance - 1" to the author's test. This group of individuals, with many different family surnames, are distant cousins, that is, blood relatives (MyDNA Cousins).

One can think of our MRCA as the great-grandfather of all great-grandfathers, living hundreds of years before society adopted family surnames. His descendants, scattered over the earth, are families with surnames of Stockton (English), Roy and Chisholm (French), Andersson (Swedish), Lintala and Mannermaa (Finnish), Wiggh (German) and over a hundred other family surnames.

MyDNA Cousins is only a small group with similar DNA, within a greater population of Hg I1d L22+ P109-.

A Deep Ancestry Study

To provide some answers today, the author conducted his own deep ancestry study by asking MyDNA Cousins: "Who was your most distant yDNA ancestor (MDA) and where did he come from?" Perhaps, the answer to this question could suggest areas of further study into the origins of this family.

Seventy-six MyDNA Cousins have identified their "Most Distant Ancestor." Many answered this question when they first applied for DNA testing and their answer is posted on a FTDNA internet page.[7] Some members provided additional information in a reply to email inquiry.

In correspondence with MyDNA Cousins, it was suggested that the author should seek information from those genetically closer to the author (i.e. 25-, 37-, or 67-marker matches). The problem the author faced was 1) that of those individuals on 25-, 37-, and 67-marker test results, all were of Stockton surname except two; 2) that these two members did not answer their email inquiries; and 3) that no one with the surname of Stockton could provide any more information about the ancestors of the two immigrant Stocktons. So, to answer the question "Who am I?" the author needed to seek information from MyDNA cousins on the 12-marker test list, those with surnames other than Stockton.

The Map

From the study, a world map was constructed, reproduced from Google Maps. Orange, green and pink map symbols represented MDA locations. Orange sunburst symbols represent ancestors reported by MyDNA Cousins with "Exact Match"; green and pink balloon symbols represented those with "Genetic Distance - 1": green for ancestors existing before 1700 A.D. and pink for ancestors since 1700A.D.

Several MyDNA Cousins provided information about their immigrant ancestors living in the New World, Australia, New Zealand and the Azores. These were tabulated, but their information did not contribute to the solution of the question about MRCA in Scandinavia. However, information about other ancestors of northern Europe could be relevant.

The attached map of northern Europe shows that portion of the world map data: Orange sunburst symbols (5); green balloon symbols (11); and pink balloon symbols (39). The symbol of a yellow house in western England illustrates the location of ancestral Stockton Manor (discussed below).

Vaasa, Finland

This map does tell a story; or several stories, if you will.

The cluster of symbols on the map of northern Europe, on the Gulf of Bothnia, in the vicinity of Vaasa, Finland, is of special significance to the author. This may indicate the origin of the ancestral family home. This is the only cluster of symbols representing MDA on the globe map.

Originally, when this study was conceived, the author had hoped to find MDA cluster(s) in Scotland with the expectation that the ancestral Stockton family was of Scottish stock. Also, there was the thought that a population of residual ancestors would produce a core cluster around the homeland as opposed to an immigrant population of ancestors which would produce a scattered pattern of settlement.

The Vaasa cluster, while not answering the question about the family in Scotland, certainly is in support of Finland as the ancestral origin of MyDNA Cousins, as reported by Family Tree DNA.

Descendants of Vikings

The scattered dispersal of symbols across the map of northern Europe, from Russia to France, also may illustrate the effect of Viking settlements across the North Atlantic and Baltic Seas. From this, it is realistic to infer that the time of MRCA of MyDNA Cousins (a subset of the greater population of L22) would be at a time after MRCA of L22, but before the Viking Age--sometime in the mid-1st Millennium--best guess: about 700 A.D.

It would appear that we're all descended from Vikings.

Other Stuff

Other things come to mind from this study:

(1). Finish history relates that Finns helped build those beautiful boats that Swede and Norwegian Vikings sailed in to far off places. Finns sometimes joined in the adventure.

(2). The large number of "hits" in the British Isles is of interest. A few members of this yDNA family have reported ancestral family history in Normandy, France, with later family migration into England.

Also, there is history that Scandinavian Vikings, under Rollo, leader of the Vikings, invaded Normandy in the 9th Century. Later, there is history about Norman migration into England when William the Conqueror (William II of Normandy) assumed the throne of England (William I of England) in 1066 A.D.

With speculation, based on historical events, the ancestors of Robert Stockton, PA, may have followed a Finland-Sweden-Denmark-France-England-Scotland-Ireland-Pennsylvania route over this 1,000 year period.

(3). Some MyDNA Cousins have reported their MDA living in close proximity to the ancestral home of immigrant Richard Stockton of New Jersey, in Malpas, Cheshire, England.

Perhaps a logical extrapolation could be made that the ancestors of Robert Stockton, PA, lacking the surname required for church registry, could have adopted their patronym from the "lords of the manor of Stockton"[8] as was the custom of the era.

Lauri Mannermaa, one of our yDNA cousins, provides needed color to this study:

About Vaasa, Finland:

Vaasa area in Finland does look like a possible and probable location for the MRCA. The area has historically been one of the places and ports from which to migrate through and from. And it has been a trading place for a very long time, even before recorded history.

About the Stockton family surname:

As far as the Stockton name goes I agree with your idea that someone along the way adopted the name from the "lords of the manor of Stockton". That was the custom, and that is exactly how my surname was adopted, it was the name of the house the ancestors lived in.

About the Stockton family migration:

I agree with your Finland-France-England-Scotland-Ireland-Pennsylvania route. The Viking East-Route passed through Southern Finland, and that route has been a trade route as long as people sailed these waters, way before the Vikings. The coast is full of island and provides very good ports and fresh water all along the route. Even the longest stretch of the route (Sweden-Finland) was/is only about a days worth of sailing, so that is a very likely route for the DNA. Another thing is that even though Vaasa is not exactly on that route itself, it is in the Gulf of Bothnia which was (and is) full of very good salmon rivers, so any travelers who wanted to fill their winter stocks with salted salmon could have sailed a few days north and fished in the region. The Gulf of Bothnia is very easy to sail in and the storms are not as severe as in the Atlantic. And if they needed to do repair on the ships there was (and still is) enough high quality wood in the forests along the coast.

Looking at the map, the migration route over the generations, looks logical. From Finland along the coasts and rivers towards west to Normandy, and then up to England / Scotland / Ireland. Sea (or any water) travel was much easier, faster, safer and reliable in the old days than going over land, and the locations fall into the general pattern of "migration to the west along the coast".

If we take 700 AD in Finland as the theoretical point (or time) of origin, and 1700 AD in Pennsylvania as the end point, and if a human generation is 20-25 years, then the DNA has had 40-50 generations to get from Finland to Pennsylvania. There only needs to be 5-10 people who moved from one place or country to another to complete the Finland-Sweden-France-England-Scotland-Ireland-Pennsylvania route. That leaves time and space for roughly 5 or more generations in every place along the route, which is plenty of time for people to become "local" and to "forget" their deep ancestral information, after 3 generations you are local by most standards. Most people or generations do not move anywhere, but it only takes one war or famine to uproot people and start a migration, and during the 1000 years from 700 to 1700 there have been many such times; wars, famines, the plague, etc.

I am guessing that someone from the region joined (for whatever reason, voluntarily or not) the Vikings or trade people and over the generations the DNA ended up in Normandy and then England and finally in Pennsylvania. During that time the Kingdoms of Sweden /Denmark / Norway did not really exist as they are today, and the Vikings or Norsemen included people from all around the region.

Conclusion:

The Most Recent Common Ancestor of MyDNA Cousins lived on the north-western coast of Finland sometime in the first millennium, say about 500 to 700 A.D.

The question remains: How did the ancestors of Robert Stockton migrate from Finland about 700 A.D. to Pennsylvania in 1700 A.D.?

Appendix

Robert[4] and Mary Stockton's Children

History is full of misstatements. Statements about the children of Col. Robert and Mary Gallion Stockton are a case in point.

Stockton (1911)[9] lists two children of Robert and Mary Stockton. Warner, et al, (1885)[10] list nine other children of Robert and Mary Stockton. Who is right? Or could both be correct? It is the contention of this author that both were correct. The evidence is weak, but should not be ignored.

Stockton (1911)

From Stockton (1911), there is a description of Col. Robert Stockton and family of Crawford County, PA, a son of Robert Stockton of Washington County, PA. Robert Stockton [Jr.] is listed with wife, (Unnamed) Gallion, and two children: Edward and Henrietta.[11]

(It should be noted that the two children's names are not traditional Stockton given names and cannot be confirmed.)

Support for Stockton (1911)

Statements by Stockton (1911) about the family of Robert Stockton [Jr.] is supported by US Census reports of 1800 and 1810.[12]

The 1800 US Census for Canton Township, Washington County, PA, lists entries for Robert Stockton Sr. and three of his sons: Robert Stockton Jr., Thomas Stockton, and Joseph Stockton.

The entry for Robert Stockton Jr. shows two adult parents under 25, and two children: a male child and a female child, both under 10 years old

Then history records that Robert Stockton moved to Crawford County, supporting his brother, Rev. Joseph Stockton, in Joseph's appointment as the first pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Meadville, PA, in 1801.[13]

1810 US Census, Crawford Co., PA

Nine years later, the US Census of 1810 for Sadsbury Township, Crawford County, PA, lists a Robert Stockton family with a male child and a female child, age 10 to 15. [Edward and Henrietta, 10 years older?]

Warner, et al (1885)

From Warner, et al., (1885), there are statements about Col. Robert Stockton of Crawford County, "formerly of Washington County," and his nine children: Robert, Thomas, John M., Martha, Maria, Joseph, Sarah, David B. and James.[14]

Support for Warner, et al (1885)

These statements by Warner, et al. (1885), about nine other children of Col. Robert Stockton, Crawford County, are supported by the 1810 and 1820 US Census and other reports.

The 1810 U.S. Census report of Robert Stockton, Sadsbury Township, shows three boys and two girls under 10 years old (i.e., born after 1800). These would be the first five children listed by Werner, et al. (1885): Robert born 1801, Thomas, 1804, John M., about 1805, Martha, 1807, and Maria, 1809. [Author's note: birth years are inserted by the author and are verified by other sources.]

Ten years later, the 1820 report shows the next three boys and one girl under 10 years of age. These would be Joseph born 1811, Sarah, about 1814, David B., about 1816, and James, 1818.

Further verification for the nine children identified by Warner, et al. (1885) is available from later US Census Reports, those after 1850, and from Crawford County deed and tax records. These nine children were of this time and place.

To sum up the situation, the two children of Stockton (1911) have not been verified, although there is support from two US Census reports.

The two unnamed children of the US Census reports, born before 1800, could be the children listed by Stockton (1911), but could not be of the nine children listed by Werner, et al. (1885), nine children all born after 1800.

One could argue that the two unnamed children possibly could be the children of Mary Gallion, if a widow of an earlier marriage; or perhaps they were children of a deceased relative that were adopted by Robert Stockton. However, there is no evidence of a previous marriage of Mary, nor is there any record of an adoption by Robert.

So...?

Family Tree DNA

Family Tree DNA is a program offering the latest technology to genealogy researchers.[1]

The author submitted a saliva scrape for testing in 2005. The author is FTDNA member #44262.

The first 12-marker STR (short tandem repeat) yDNA test was completed in 2005. The 67-marker STR yDNA upgrade test and the deep cycle SNP (single-nucleotide polymorphism) test were completed in 2010.

Test Results

12-Marker test (an entry level test):

Findings:

> The author's yDNA is Haplogroup I (Hg I; the letter I, not the number 1).[2]
> There is a 70% probability that the author is a descendant of the Robert Stockton (Pennsylvania) and Davis Stockton (Virginia) Family lines.

Members of Haplogroup I are largely found in northern Europe; 40% of the percentage of population of Sweden are Hg I.

There are 39 other individuals with a "12-marker exact match" to the author's test. There are 136 other named individuals with a "12-

About the Author

Robert David Stockton was born in 1923 in Los Angeles, CA, the eldest of a family of five children of Dr. Frank W. Stockton, D.D.S., born 1895, Warren County, PA; died 1983, Santa Crus, CA, and Miriam Adelia (Pike) Stockton, born 1902, South New Berlin, Chenango County, NY; married 1923, died 1960, Santa Cruz, CA.

The paternal grandfather was Thomas Lawrence Stockton, born 1863, Crawford County, PA; died 1937, Los Angeles, CA. The paternal grandmother was Myrtle Estelle (Stilson) Stockton, born 1871, Blue Eye, Warren County, PA; died 1965, Santa Cruz, CA.

The maternal grandfather was Rev. William Henry Pike, born 1872, Chenango County, NY; died 1936, Los Angeles, CA. The maternal grandmother was Charlotte Adelia (Sage) Pike, born 1871, Chenango Co, NY; died 1953, Los Angeles, CA.

The parents and grandparents are buried together in Valhalla Memorial Park in North Hollywood, CA.

Robert and Ruby Margurite Ambrose were married in 1945, She was born April 27, 1923, Cole County, MO. They have one surviving daughter, Janet Eileen (Stockton) McBee, born May 22, 1959, Shelton, WA, and two granddaughters, Amanda Celine McBee, born May 22, 1990, and Elizabeth Kaitlin McBee, born December 01, 1992.

Robert served in the U.S. Army in 1943-1945 and 1950-1951. During World War II he served in the Philippine Islands, in the 789th Field Artillery Btn, with rank of Sergeant.

He was educated in the Los Angeles and Glendale, California, school systems. He attended the University of Michigan, with degrees in Forestry and Wildlife Management.

His principal employer was the Forest Service, U.S.D.A., with service on the Olympic, Winema, Willamette, Clark and Ottawa National Forests, with retirement in 1987.

His amateur radio call sign is KB8MO.

Genealogy Report
Descendants of Robert Stockton

Generation No. 1

1. ROBERT[1] STOCKTON[1,2,3,4] d. 1747 in Lancaster Co., PA. He m. ISABEL (UNKNOWN)[5]. She d. 1747 in Lancaster Co., PA.

More about ROBERT STOCKTON:
Burial: 1747, Pequea Cemetery, Lancaster Co., PA.
1732. "Robert Stockton and his wife, Isabel, were in Nottingham Township, Chester County, Pa., as early as 1732, and his name appears in tax lists there until 1747. This place is at the extreme southwestern part of Chester County, adjoining the Maryland line, and was probably considered as being in Maryland before the establishment of Mason and Dixon's line." (Stockton, 1911).
1747. "Robert and Isabel Stockton both d. in the year 1747, in Lancaster County, PA. The will of Isabel was recorded and proved March 1, 1747-8, and that of Robert was filed with it. The executors named were their sons, Thomas and David." (Ibid).

Children of ROBERT STOCKTON and ISABEL (UNKNOWN) are:

2. i. CAPT. THOMAS[2] STOCKTON, b. abt. 1709; d. May 31, 1795, Mercersburg, Franklin Co., PA.
   ii. DAVID STOCKTON[6,7], b. 1711; d. 1752, Strawsburgh, Lancaster Co., PA; m. ELIZABETH SMITH, Jul. 28, 1752.
3. iii. ROBERT STOCKTON, b. abt. 1713, Ireland; d. 1778, Berkeley Co., WV.
4. iv. JOHN STOCKTON, b. abt. 1717.
   v. GEORGE STOCKTON[8], b. abt. 1721; d. bet. 1747-1748; m. JANE (UNKNOWN).
   vi. (UNKNOWN) STOCKTON[9], m. JOHN YOUNG.

5. vii. MARGARET STOCKTON, b. 1721, Ulster, Ireland; d. May 01, 1772, Bucks Co., PA.
6. viii. JANE STOCKTON.

Generation No. 2

2. CAPT. THOMAS[2] STOCKTON (ROBERT[1])[10,11,12,13,14,15,16,17,18,19,20,21,22,23] was b. abt. 1709, and d. May 31, 1795 in Mercersburg, Franklin Co., PA. He m. MARGARET FLEMING[24]. She was b. in Ireland.

viii. MARGARET STOCKTON[42,43,44,45], b. 1745, Chester Co., PA; m. (UNKNOWN) JOHNSON.

3. ROBERT[2] STOCKTON (ROBERT[1])[46] was b. abt. 1713 in Ireland, and d. 1778 in Berkeley Co., WV. He m. SARAH KEITH FLEMING.

Children of ROBERT STOCKTON and SARAH FLEMING are:

10. i. MAJ. GEORGE (TWIN)[3] STOCKTON, b. Jul. 20, 1745, Jefferson Co., WV; d. Apr. 09, 1819, Fleming Co., KY.

ii. ISABELLA (TWIN) STOCKTON[47,48], b. Jul. 20, 1745, Jefferson Co., WV; m. COL. WILLIAM MCCLEARY.

More about ISABELLA STOCKTON:
"Isabella Stockton... was captured by Indians at the same time as her brother George. After a captivity of a month, she was sold to a Canadian trader, who took her to his home in Montreal, where she was carefully educated. She was eventually restored to her parents." (Stockton, 1911).

iii. ROBERT STOCKTON[49,50,51], b. Jul. 08, 1772; d. Feb. 15, 1789, Fleming Co., KY.

More about ROBERT STOCKTON:
"Robert Stockton... and Beacham Rhodes set out from Stockton's station in the winter of 1789, for the purpose of hunting on the waters of Fox's Creek and its tributaries, then the favorite resorts of the buffalo, deer, bear, etc. Regarding the season of the year, it was not considered any adventure fraught with great danger, as the Indians rarely visited Kentucky except in the seasons when the necessaries of life were more easily obtained. The hunters pitched their camp upon the bank of Fox's Creek, and enjoyed several days of successful hunting and exciting sport. On the night of the 15th of February, after a day of unusual excitement and fatigue, the hunters, replenishing their fire, rolled themselves up in their blankets and stretching themselves (with their two fine dogs) upon the ground, after the manner of the hunters of that day, without other "means and appliances," were soon soundly asleep. About the middle of the night, they were aroused by the simultaneous discharge of two guns. Stockton sprang to his feet, only to fall lifeless to the earth. Rhodes, though severely wounded in the hip by two balls from the same gun, succeeded (whilst the dogs made fiercely at the Indians) in crawling beyond the light of the fire. Stationing himself behind a tree, he calmly awaited the reappearance of the Indians, resolved to sell his life at the cost of one of theirs. The Indians, doubtless suspecting his purpose, were wise enough to mount the horses of the hunters, and made for the Kentucky river, where one of them was afterwards killed. The Indians not appearing, Rhodes determined, if possible, to conceal himself before day should dawn. With this hope, he crawled into the creek, and that his trail might not be discovered, kept in the water until about a half a mile from camp he came to a large pile of brush and logs which the creek had drifted. In this he remained secreted (in momentary expectation of hearing the Indians) all day. At night he set out on a painful journey towards home, and on the seventh day after his wound, reached Fleming Creek, having crawled a distance of fourteen miles. The creek was considerably swollen, and in his wounded and exhausted state, presented an insuperable barrier to his further progress. Fortunately, however, he was found by another hunter, who aided him in reaching his home. The friends of Stockton, instantly collecting, started for the camp, where they found:

His faithful dog, in life his firmest friend,
The first to welcome, foremost to defend,
Whose honest heart was still his master's own,
Who labor'd, fought, lived and breathed for him alone...

guarding his body, though so weak from starvation, as to be unable to walk. A circle of torn earth all around the body of Stockton, marked the rage and disappointment of wolves and panthers, and told how watchful and firm had been the protection of the dog. Stockton was buried where he fell, and his grave, marked with a large slab, is yet to be seen in going from Flemingsburg to Carter court-house, one mile beyond Phillips' springs. The friends of Stockton carried home the dog, and after several weeks, the other dog, which had followed the horses, also returned." (Stockton, 1911).

More about MAJ. GEORGE STOCKTON:
"The following account of Major Stockton and of Colonel Fleming, is taken from Collins' History of Kentucky.... George Stockton, who, in his infancy, had been taken prisoner together with his sister, by the Indians in Virginia, and carried to New York, there remained until he became so much attached to the Indian manner of living, that the desire to see his friends and family could scarcely overcome his reluctance to part with those whom association had made dear.... After he had grown up, he accompanied his tribe on a trading expedition to Pennsylvania, and there determined to visit his friends in Virginia. A fondness for forest life had so intertwined itself with his very nature, that he could ill support the dull uniformity of society, and he soon set out for Kentucky, to enjoy the glorious solitude and freedom of the woods." (Stockton, 1911).
1787. "He settled at Stockton's station, in sight of Flemingsburg, in 1787." (Ibid).
1792. "George Stockton of Fleming County was a member of the Convention of 1792, which formed the first constitution of Kentucky; held in Danville." (Ibid).

More about BRIG. GEN. JOHN STOCKTON:
Military service: 1776, Lt. Stockton distinguished at storming of Fort Washington, NY, by British army; captured and suffered as prisoner of war.
1776. "At the outbreak of the American Revolution, Brigadier-General John Stockton entered the army as a lieutenant, in one of the Maryland regiments, with which he immediately marched to headquarters, in the state of New York. He was, it is believed, at the battle of Long Island, and in all the subsequent actions of note, up to the period of the storming of Fort Washington, on the 16th of November, 1776. That fortress was garrisoned by 2,000 men under the command of Col. Magaw; and Stockton's company, under Col. Rawlings, formed a part of the garrison. The storming force comprised nearly the whole British army under Gen. Howe; and the feeble garrison was, of course, overpowered; but not without a bloody combat, and not until the British had lost from 800 to 1,200 men, and the Americans 400, killed and wounded. Rawling's regiment was particularly distinguished in this affair, for gallantry, and for the slaughter of the Hessian troops, against which it particularly fought. Lieut. Stockton suffered severely as a prisoner of war, being confined for a long time in an old sugar-house, in New York, where he was exposed to all those privations, indignities, and cruelties, which, in those days were sure to be the lot of an American "rebel" soldier, in a British military prison-house. His captivity, too, was long protracted; and when he was exchanged, he found himself outranked in the service in consequence of which, he resigned his commission. Some time afterwards, he removed to Delaware, and remained a citizen of the State of his adoption until his death, in 1822." (Stockton, 1911).

1812. "He served in the Delaware militia, and ultimately, with the rank of Brigadier-General, he commanded the volunteers of Delaware, who, during the war of 1812, were assembled at Elkton, Md., to assist in the defense of that town against Admiral Cockburn and his incendiary marauders." (Ibid).

Obituary. "Charles R. Bowman, Former Treasurer and Sheriff, Is Taken By Death." Charles R. Bowman, 91, one of the oldest and most prominent residents of Clarion county, died at 12:30 a. m. Tuesday in the Oakland Nursing Home for Men in Pittsburgh. A son of David and Ellen Robertson Bowman, he was born March 17, 1858, in Newmansville, Clarion county. He was married to the former Miss Caroline Stockton. Widely known in Clarion county, Mr. Bowman always was active in politics and during his earlier days spearheaded the Democratic party's campaign in the county. He was elected treasurer of Clarion county on November 7, 1893, and served until 1896. On November 3. 1903, he was elected county sheriff on the Democratic ticket and held that post until November, 1906. Terms of office then were three years as compared with four years today. Mr. Bowman was a life member of the Masonic lodge of Clarion and a life member of the Royal Arch chapter of Masons in Clarion. About 10 years ago he was presented with a 50 year membership pin by the Masonic order, thus becoming the oldest member of the F. and A. M. lodge, Clarion. He is a member, also, of the Knights Templar and Pennsylvania Consistory of Pittsburgh and B. P. O. Elks of Reynoldsville. During later years, Mr. Bowman served as caretaker of the Clarion county court house. He was a graduate of Duff's Business College in Pittsburgh. Surviving are the following children: Roy of Orlando, Fla; Des of North Hollywood, Calif.; Mrs Edna Plotner of Turtle Creek; Miss Twila Bowman of Toledo, Ohio; Bland of Clarion and Dr. Lawrence W. Bowman of Washington, D.C. Also surviving is a 90 year old sister, Mrs. Jane Alt of Leeper. The body is at the Jenkins funeral home, Clarion. (Clarion Democrat, Feb. 08,1950).

50. Ibid, 248-249. Robert Stockton... and Beacham Rhodes set out from Stockton's station in the winter of 1789, for the purpose of hunting on the waters of Fox's Creek and its tributaries, then the favorite resorts of the buffalo, deer, bear, etc. Regarding the season of the year, it was not considered any adventure fraught with great danger, as the Indians rarely visited Kentucky except in the seasons when the necessaries of life were more easily obtained. The hunters pitched their camp upon the bank of Fox's Creek, and enjoyed several days of successful hunting and exciting sport. On the night of the 15th of February, after a day of unusual excitement and fatigue, the hunters, replenishing their fire, rolled themselves up m their blankets and stretching themselves (with their two fine dogs) upon the ground, after the manner of the hunters of that day, without other "means and appliances," were soon soundly asleep. About the middle of the night, they were aroused by the simultaneous discharge of two guns. Stockton sprang to his feet, only to fall lifeless to the earth. Rhodes, though severely wounded in the hip by two balls from the same gun, succeeded (whilst the dogs made fiercely at the Indians) in crawling beyond the light of the fire. Stationing himself behind a tree, he calmly awaited the reappearance of the Indians, resolved to sell his life at the cost of one of theirs. The Indians, doubtless suspecting his purpose, were wise enough to mount the horses of the hunters, and made for the Kentucky river, where one of them was afterwards killed. The Indians not appearing, Rhodes determined, if possible, to conceal himself before day should dawn. With this hope, he crawled into the creek, and that his trail might not be discovered, kept in the water until about a half a mile from camp he came to a large pile of brush and logs which the creek had drifted. In this he remained secreted (in momentary expectation of hearing the Indians) all day. [Continued].

51. Ibid, 248-249. [Continued]. At night he set out on a painful journey towards home, and on the seventh day after his wound, reached Fleming Creek, having crawled a distance of fourteen miles. The creek was considerably swollen, and in his wounded and exhausted state, presented an insuperable barrier to his further progress. Fortunately, however, he was found by another hunter, who aided him in reaching his home. The friends of Stockton, instantly collecting, started for the camp, where they found "His faithful dog, in life his firmest friend, The first to welcome, foremost to defend, Whose honest heart was still his master's own, Who labor'd, fought, lived and breathed for him alone..." guarding his body, though so weak from starvation, as to be unable to walk. A circle of torn earth all around the body of Stockton, marked the rage and disappointment of wolves and panthers, and told how watchful and firm had been the protection of the dog. Stockton was buried where he fell, and his grave, marked with a large slab, is yet to be seen in going from Flemingsburg to Carter court-house, one mile beyond Phillips' springs. The friends of Stockton carried home the dog, and after several weeks, the other dog, which had followed the horses, also returned..

150. Ibid, 248. The following account of Major. Stockton and of Colonel Fleming, is taken from Collins' History of Kentucky.... George Stockton, who, in his infancy, had been taken prisoner together with his sister, by the Indians in Virginia, and carried to New York, there remained until he became so much attached, to the Indian manner of living, that the desire to see his friends and family could scarcely overcome his reluctance to part with those whom association had made dear.... After he had grown up, he accompanied his tribe on a trading expedition to Pennsylvania, and there determined to visit his friends in Virginia. A fondness for forest life had so intertwined itself with his very nature, that he could ill support the dull uniformity of society, and he soon set out for Kentucky, to enjoy the glorious solitude and freedom of the woods. He settled at Stockton's station, in sight of Flemingsburg, in 1787.... George Stockton of Fleming County was a member of the Convention of 1792, which formed the first constitution of Kentucky; held in Danville.

161. Ibid, 252-253. At the outbreak of the American Revolution, Brigadier-General John Stockton entered the army as a lieutenant, in one of the Maryland regiments, with which he immediately marched to headquarters, in the state of New York. He was, it is believed, at the battle of Long Island, and in all the subsequent actions of note, up to the period of the storming of Fort Washington, on the i6th of November, 1776. That fortress was garrisoned by 2,000 men under the command of Col. Magaw; and Stockton's company, under Col. Rawlings, formed a part of the garrison. The storming force comprised nearly the whole British army under Gen. Howe; and the feeble garrison was, of course, overpowered; but not without a bloody combat, and not until the British had lost from 8oo to 1,200 men, and the Americans 400, killed and wounded. Rawling's regiment was particularly distinguished in this affair, for gallantry, and for the slaughter of the Hessian troops, against which it particularly fought. Lieut. Stockton suffered severely as a prisoner of war, being confined for a long time in an old sugar-house, in New York, where he was exposed to all those privations, indignities, and cruelties, which, in those days were sure to be the lot of an American "rebel" soldier, in a British military prison-house. His captivity, too, was long protracted; and when he was exchanged, he found himself outranked in the service in consequence of which, he resigned his commission. Some time afterwards, he removed to Delaware, and remained a citizen of the State of his adoption until his death, in 1822. He served in the Delaware militia, and ultimately, with the rank of Brigadier-General, he commanded the volunteers of Delaware, who, during the war of 1812, were assembled at Elkton, Md., to assist in the defense of that town against Admiral Cockburn and his incendiary marauders.

Educated Canonsburg Academy, studied theology under Dr. John McMillan, ordained 1801. Pastorates: Meadville/Little Sugar Creek, 1801-10; Pine Creek, -1832. Married Esther Clark, seven children. Died Oct. 29, 1832, Baltimore, Md., buried Allegheny Cemetery, Pittsburg.
326. Stockton (1911), 267-268. Rev. Joseph Stockton... was educated at Jefferson College, Cannonsburg, where he was graduated M.A., and afterward studied theology under John M'Millan, D.D., a Presbyterian clergyman. He became a licentiate in 1799; was ordained Jun. 24, 1801, and appointed first pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Meadville, where he resided for nine years. During this time he had charge of the Academy, which still continues a thriving institution. In 1809, he was appointed principal of the Pittsburg Academy, which afterward became the Western University, and held the position for eleven years. During this time he published the once famous school books, the Western Spelling Book and Western Calculator. His ministerial duties were devoted, from his first establishment at Pittsburg, to the soldiers at the garrison, to the building of a church at Alleghany, and to supplying the infant congregation at Pine Creek, until 1820, when for the next nine years he devoted himself to the Alleghany and Pine Creek congregations. Oct. 29, 1832, while visiting his son at Baltimore, MD, he d. of cholera and was buried in the burial-yard of the First Church at that place. He m. May 8, 1800, Esther, dau. of David Clark. She was b. at Washington, Pa., Mar. 29, 1782, and d. Apr. 13, 1868.

The settlement was first given the name Oak Woods because of the tall oaks that forested the area. Lumbering became its principal industry. The settlement became known as Geebuck. The logs were hauled with oxen and the teamster's cry of "Gee Buck" was a familiar sound. It was called Geebuck until a new postoffice was established and it was named Guitonville for the famous pioneer hunter and trapper Robert Guiton. Other early settlers were Bob Stockton, James and William Myers, the Whittsons, the Eichenburgs, the Dotterers, the Burdicks, the Wests and the Lovells. In addition to working in the mill they bought and cleared farms.

725. Clarion County Newspaper (Clarion, PA). Clarion Democrat, Feb. 08, 1950. Obituary. Charles R. Bowman, Former Treasurer and Sheriff Is Taken By Death. Charles R. Bowman, 91, one of the oldest and most prominent residents of Clarion county, died at 12:30 a. m. Tuesday in the Oakland Nursing Home for Men in Pittsburgh. A son of David and Ellen Robertson Bowman, he was born March 17, 1858, in Newmansville, Clarion county. He was married to the former Miss Caroline Stockton. Widely known in Clarion county, Mr. Bowman always was active in politics and during his earlier days spearheaded the Democratic party's campaign in the county. Hi was elected treasurer of Clarion county on November 7, 1898, and served until 1896. On November 3, 1903, he was elected county sheriff on the Democratic ticket and held that post until November 1906. Terms of office then were three years as compared with four years today. Mr. Bowman was a life member of the Masonic lodge of Clarion and a life member of the Royal Arch chapter of Masons in Clarion. About 10 years ago he was presented with a 50 year membership pin by the Masonic order, thus becoming the oldest member of the F. and A. M. lodge, Clarion. He is a member, also, of the Knights Templar and Pennsylvania Consistory of Pittsburgh and B. P. O. Elks of Reynoldsville. During later years, Mr. Bowman served as caretaker of the Clarion county court house. He was a graduate of Duff's Business College in Pittsburgh. Surviving are the following children: Roy of Orlando, Fla; Des of North Hollywood, Calif.;Mrs Edna Plotner of Turtle Creek; Miss Twila Bowman of Toledo, O.; Bland of Clarion and Dr. Lawrence

W. Bowman of Washington, D.C. Also surviving is a 90 year old sister, Mrs. Jane Alt of Leeper. The body is at the Jenkins funeral home, Clarion.

1027. Freyermuth, Barbara Joy, Natural Designs Jewelry <http://www.naturaldesignsjewelry.com/>. Our jewelry store in Manitou Springs, Colorado, was open for ten years from 1977 to 1987. My husband, Lee, my three sons and I worked very hard in Colorado to ensure excellent quality and to provide the best service for our customers. My oldest worked as a silversmith and even Brian, who was only five when we opened our store tried to sell rings while sitting on a stool. Since our return to California, my husband and I have continued our jewelry business doing mail order and showing at high-quality art and craft shows. I have moved to Oregon. My hubby, Lee passed away 2 years ago and I am adjusting to single life. I keep busy teaching jewelry designing.

Robert David Stockton, born 1923 in Los Angeles, CA, is the eldest of a family of five children of Dr. Frank W. Stockton, D.D.S. (1895-1983) and Miriam Adelia (Pike) Stockton (1902-1960).

Robert and Ruby Margurite Ambrose (1923-2010) were married in 1945. They have one daughter, Janet Eileen (Stockton) McBee, and two granddaughters, Amanda Celine McBee and Elizabeth Kaitlin McBee.

Robert served in the U.S. Army in 1943-1945 and 1950-1951. During World War II he served in the Philippine Islands, in the 789th Field Artillery Btn., with rank of Sergeant.

Robert attended the University of Michigan, with degrees in Forestry (1950) and Wildlife Management (1953).

His principal employer was the Forest Service, U.S.D.A., with service on the Olympic, Winema, Willamette, Clark and Ottawa National Forests, with retirement in 1987.

His amateur radio call sign is KB8MO.

Sisu

Sisu is the only word for the Finns' strongest national characteristic. Sisu is a word that can't be translated. It stands for a philosophy that what must be done will be done, and it is no use to count the cost. In short, it's the indomitable will that sets Finns apart and explains many of the incredible things they do.
